Drives Truck, Runs Cement Mixer

John Novak, shown driving a truck and getting a bit of exercise with an 180-lb. bar bell, is an active member of a Cleveland cement contracting firm formed last spring by the ex-Tech. Sgt. and his brother-in-law. The firm now boasts a pay roll of 10 and a 6-week work backlog. Formerly with the First Ranger Battalion and a Silver Star winner, Novak lost both arms in an antipersonnel mine explosion at Anzio. He has mastered manipulation of the artificial arms, operates the firm's big mixer, and sometimes drives a truck.

Million Acres to Be Oregon Wheat Goal Next Season

A production goal for Oregon of one million acres of wheat seed for harvest in 1947 has been announced by E. Harvey Miller, state director of Production and Marketing administration. The goal was approved by the secretary of agriculture on the recommendations of the Oregon USDA council and the state production adjustment committee.

The 1947 state goal is almost 8 per cent less than the 1,081,000 planted this year, but still one per cent more than the 1937-41 average of 992,000 acres. Nationally, farmers are asked to plant 71,700,000 acres for 1947 harvest, one per cent more than this year.

In setting the state goal, the world food situation and the present low level of food supplies were weighed against land use and other considerations, Miller reported. One million acres is the maximum possible acreage while maintaining summer fallow and without planting wheat on land to which it is not suited or which should be kept in grass, he pointed out.

In addition to reasons of land use, the goal setters considered that any increase above the goal would result in a reduction of other crops, such as barley and oats, which will produce more feed to the acre on the land involved than wheat.

"Even with the reduction, the 1947 goal represents a larger acreage than can safely be maintained after the present emergency," Miller declared. "Since this is 'short fallow' year, normally we would plant considerably less than the million acres. So the million acre goal means another year's delay in returning to the peacetime pattern of production and a better balance between soil-conserving and soil-depleting uses of our cropland."

As to outlets for the 1947 crop, the department of agriculture assumes that a smaller volume of exports will be offset by increased domestic uses of wheat above the quantity being consumed now because of famine emergency restrictions, plus the need for building up end-of-year stocks to a safer working margin.

Wednesday Noon Is Adv. Deadline Now

Several weeks ago, the Sentinel found it necessary to establish an advertising deadline on Wednesday noon of each week. Apparently this fact is not generally known, particularly among the classified advertisers. Except the newsstand sales, all of the Sentinel edition is sent out through the mail and the mails have their schedules too. So in order to meet these conditions and have time to set and adjust type in the forms, it is necessary that we close our columns to advertising at least a few hours before press time.

Get your copy in early whether it be news or advertising to insure insertion.

The Lorane Rebekah lodge will honor those having birthdays on the first meeting of the month and will serve refreshments. Three will be initiated at the next meeting, Mrs. Ellen Stiff, Mrs. Dorothy Wyman and Miss Elinor Brown.

A large box of clothes for the European relief was sorted at the last meeting of the Ugo Igo club with Mrs. H. A. Mitchell. Mrs. Dorothy Conner was welcomed as a new member.

It is not the fact that a man has riches which keeps him from the kingdom of heaven, but the fact that riches have him.—Caird.
