DEVELOP CONCENTRATION

Concentration is a great distinguishing faculty of men of high purpose. The ability to apply your mind steadily and exclusively to one subject at a time is a mark of superior power and essential to really great achievement. Concentration can be cultivated by regular and conscientious practice. When you detect your mind wandering, instantly substitute the desired subject for the intrusive one. Repeated efforts will rapidly remedy the fault. Be on your guard against mind-wandering and idle day dreaming. Be deeply interested in what you are doing, and ignore vagrant ideas. Concentration will rapidly build your mental power. It is vital to large mental power and personal advancement.—Glenville Kleiser.

"OUR AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE"

BY DEWITT EMERY

Our American way of life is made up of many things, bathtubs and automobiles; big cities and small towns; farms and victory gardens; mammoth steel mills and village machine shops; colossal educational institutions and the little red school beside the road; churches and hospitals; railroads and air lines; chewing gum and ice cream; department stores and crossroad general stores; specialty shops and beauty parlors; pool rooms and race tracks. Hollywood, Broadway and the High School play; laughter and sorrow; eagerness and despair and people—millions of all kinds of people—gathered together from all over the world, drawn by the magnet of Freedom, Opportunity and Justice.

Our American way of life provides each individual an opportunity to go as far and climb as high as his willingness to work, his skill, ingenuity and integrity will carry him.

Our American way of life recognizes that the individual has the right to work when and where he wishes, the right to worship as he pleases, to speak his mind on any subject, to meet with his fellow men for any peaceful purpose, to be secure in his possessions and to have his day in a free court. It also recognizes that the individual is superior to the State, that our public officials are servants of the people and that they derive their just powers from the consent of the people.

These things taken together created an atmosphere of freedom and an economic climate which made possible in the United States the greatest production and diffusion of wealth in the history of the world, and the establishment for even the lowest paid workers, of the highest standard of living the world has ever known.

Why? Because for more than one hundred fifty years, free men in a free country have been working together to provide this better way of life. Let us hold what they have given us and go forward in the sure faith that the American way of life is the greatest blessing known to mankind any place on the face of God's earth.
