Farmers Need Not Sell Seed for Less Than Support Price

Harvest time for seed crops brings a reminder to Lane county growers from Ernest E. Schrenk, chairman of the county agricultural conservation (AAA) Committee, that they need not sell their 1946 seed crops for less than the announced government support prices.

"While as yet there is no indication that market prices will be less than support prices, it's good business for farmers to have in mind the support prices when the time comes to market their crops," Mr. Schrenk said.

Cover crop seeds, of which Oregon is the nation's leading producer, will again be supported thru a direct purchase program. As in previous years, the county committee will act for the government in buying seed direct from producers at 12 cents a pound for hairy vetch, 6 cents for Willamette vetch, 11 1/2 cents for crimson clover and 7 1/2 cents for common rye grass. These prices are for seed meeting basic germination and purity requirements, and appropriate differentials are provided for lower quality seed.

Willamette vetch purchased by the government will need to be field tagged by the state certifying agency, the chairman said. But except for blue tag foundation seed, clean seed will not require a certification tag.

Austrian peas are not included in the purchase program, but loans are offered at 3 1/2 cents a pound on seed stored in approved warehouses.

Prices of forage crop seeds again will be supported through a loan program. Loan rates for the more important varieties include $1.25 a pound for ladino clover, 40 cents for certified and 33 cents for common alfalfa, 25 cents for alsike clover, and 34 cents for certified and 28 cents for common red clover. Loans will be available through the county office on seed stored in approved warehouses.

In addition to the support price, special incentive payments again have been authorized by congress to encourage greater production of three important legume seeds, Mr. Schrenk reminded. These payments will be made on seed sold into commercial channels before January 1, 1947, at the rate of 9 cents a pound for red clover and 7 cents a pound for alsike and alfalfa. A special harvesting payment of up to $35 a farm also is offered.

Funds Increased To Help Support PMA Conservation

An additional $140,650 has been made available for assisting Oregon farmers and ranchers with soil and water conserving practices under the 1946 agricultural conservation program, it has been announced by E. Harvey Miller, chairman of the state PMA committee.

Oregon's share of the funds provided by congress for conservation practice payments to farmers in 1946 has been increased to $2,953,650 as compared with the original allocation at the start of the year of $2,813,000.

Miller said that the additional funds will be allocated to counties whose original allocations are not sufficient to cover all of the conservation work for which farmers have requested assistance. He indicated that county agricultural conservation committees will be asked to use the extra funds to increase minimum farm allowances on farms where the most conservation can be obtained.

The operators of some 33,500 Oregon farms have filed 14,141 plans requesting practice payment assistance amounting to more than $5,000,000, Miller reported. County committees currently are asking operators to report any changes in the intended practices listed on the farm plans, which were made out last spring.

"Farmers who find that they will not be able to carry out some of the practices for which they requested assistance are urged to amend their farm plans accordingly," Miller said. "This will release funds for conservation work on other farms."
