Nuptial Vows Exchanged at Church Service

A beautiful background of green ferns intertwined with peach and white gladioli and white tapers in candelabra on either side was the setting at the Church of Christ Sunday afternoon August 18th at 2:30 o'clock when nuptial vows were exchanged by Miss Jean Ann Hosman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hosman, and Derrill Lee Sarff, son of Mrs. Nell Sarff. A group of 200 relatives and friends were present for the ceremony read by J. Michael Shelley, minister of the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a street length dress of white eyelet with white accessories and carried a white Bible with purple orchid and shower of stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Betty Mae Hosman, who wore a gold colored dress and white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Robert Gleason was best man and ushers were Jerry McCormack and Howard Harpole.

The candles were lighted by Lorene Hosman, sister of the bride and Patty Aubrey, who wore dresses of green and yellow.

Miss Bonnie Gleason sang "All-ways" preceding the ceremony. She was accompanied by Mrs. Herbert Moon. Mrs. Moon also played the wedding music.

Mr. and Mrs. Sarff left for a short trip to the coast after which they will make their home in Cottage Grove. Mr. Sarff being employed at the Quality Market. Mrs. Sarff plans to finish high school this year.

Those attending the wedding from out of town were: Eugene Ramsey, Merrill; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Spencer, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Spencer and family, Eugene; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Perkins and family, Creswell; Mr. and Mrs. Myrtle Abene, Sutherlin; Mrs. Myrtle Graham, Albany; S. H. Graham, Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones and son, Salem; Miss Elaine Waggoner, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Vincent and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Frazier, all of Creswell.

Method Preserving Sweet Corn Told

Let's try to preserve our sweet corn so that we will have plenty of good corn for the present table use and also for canning, asks W. B. Parker, assistant county agent.

The corn earworm usually causes serious damage to sweet corn in Lane county in the late summer and fall. The corn earworm in the adult stage is a rather large grayish-brown moth. The pearly white eggs are laid singly on fresh corn silks and occasionally on or near tassels. The eggs hatch in about four days in warm weather, and the young larvae begin feeding on the silk, working their way to the tips of the ears where they mature on the developing kernels.

Varieties of sweet corn, such as Golden Cross Bantam, that have long, tight husks are less injured by the corn earworm than those with shorter or looser husks which induce the larvae to feed farther down in the ears.

Oil treatment for control of the corn earworm consists of the application of small quantities of oil, or oil containing a pyrethrum extract, to the tips of the ears.

Ready-mixed preparations of oil and pyrethrum extract for treating sweet corn are on the market and can be obtained from most seed and insecticide dealers.

Timing the treatment is the most important phase of the method, both from the standpoint of preventing injury and obtaining control. Oil will prevent pollination, so treatment must not be made until most of the silks have been pollinated. This can be determined by the fact that the silks wilt and the tips turn brown soon after pollination. It is important that the ears not be treated until the silks have wilted. The oil will prevent the formation of kernels on all parts of the ear touched by it. The quantity of oil must therefore be carefully controlled.

It is necessary to treat at least two times, due to the unevenness of silking. Ears should be marked as the first treatment is made to prevent duplication during later applications. White or red chalk is satisfactory for marking the ears.

Parker says any small force oiler which can be adjusted to deliver a fixed quantity of oil at each stroke of the plunger can be used. If a large amount of corn is to be treated, a one-gallon can may be fitted with straps to be carried as a knapsack and connected by a tube to the oiler. The spout of the oiler should be so adjusted in relation to the position of the trigger that it can be easily manipulated. The proper amount of oil is 10 to 15 drops per ear.

The tip of the oiler should be inserted about one-fourth to one-half inch into the tip of the husks. If it is inserted too far, the tip of the ear may be damaged; if not far enough, the oil may run back out the tip of the ear. A washer can be soldered to the spout of the oiler about one-half inch from the tip to prevent inserting the "All evil has a basis of partial truth," said a local pastor recently.

Greed and avarice are showing themselves with increasing openness before the Paris peace council. Will the exponents of decency and democracy be able to hold out against world selfishness?

spout too far into the ear. Home gardeners may find that a medicine dropper is satisfactory for applying the oil to the ears.

Although a high degree of control cannot generally be expected, dusting with cryolite or calcium arsenate has often been suggested for earworm control. Inasmuch as calcium arsenate is likely to cause silk injury in the presence of moisture, a dust containing 40% cryolite is suggested for use in the Willamette valley. The dust should be directed at the silks when they first appear and repeated three or four times at three or four-day intervals.

REUNION AT LASSELLS STEWART HOME

The Lassells Stewarts entertained at a very happy reunion of the Jasper B. and Florence Neet Hills family at their home Sunday with a potluck dinner.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKenzie of Scio and their two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McKenzie and family Delbert and Mary Jo of Eugene and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McKenzie and daughter Colleen of Eugene; Mrs. Charles Hills of Oakridge, daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Hearne, Carol and Mike of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hills of Springfield and family, Mrs. Hubert Leabo, and daughters Geraldine, Mary and Molly and son Lloyd of Jasper; Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Hills and daughter Carol Ann of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Walker and son James and daughter, Mrs. Doris Sayre and Karen of Oakridge; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Huntington and son Charles Jr. of Eugene; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hills and small son Larry Charles of Oakridge; Mr. and Mrs. Loran Stewart and son LaSells of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Faye Stewart, Suzanne, Bruce and Mary Fay of Cottage Grove.

Other guests at the reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Hills of Big Fall Creek. Mr. Hills is the only living member of the pioneer family of Cornelius and Sophronia Briggs Hills of Jasper.

At the outdoor picnic held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martilla on the Coburg road opposite the Oakway golf course, many members of Eugene H. of H. Society met on Wednesday evening, August 14th. Among those present were Mrs. Glennie Frost, a former resident, and Belle Burkholder of Cottage Grove. Mrs. Minnie Chapman of the Divide district is also a member, but was unable to be present. After dinner a business meeting was held and it was decided to change the name to the Eugene Hearing Society in accordance with the National Hearing Society of which the Eugene branch is a member. Games were played in which skill in conveying beans was featured. Mrs. Glennie Frost won the prize for dropping the most beans, 31, into a milk bottle.

Mrs. Emingray of Eugene gave several refreshments. Sam Peters conveyed the most beans on a knife to a given point.

The next luncheon meeting will be with Mrs. E. M. Wilder, president, at her home, 1471 Mill St., Eugene, on September 11th. All hard of hearing people of this vicinity are eligible to become members. Contact Belle Burkholder for transportation. Others who are interested in this work may also become a member of the club. Our objective is to promote better hearing for those so handicapped and enjoy a good social time in addition.

CONSTITUTION CLUB

The Constitution club will meet Thursday, September 5th, in the club rooms at 1:30 o'clock. The newly elected officers will be hostesses.
