B & P W CLUB TO OBSERVE BUSINESS WOMEN'S WEEK

The local Business and Professional Women's club will observe National Business Women's week, October 13-19, the theme being "Let's All Work Together for a Better Community." At the regular meeting Monday night W. C. Martin, editor of the Sentinel, was guest speaker, and spoke on journalism and stressed the need for a local hospital. W. C. Martin Jr. favored the group with two piano solos. Three ladies, Leona Fauquier, Lois Mills and Eva C. King, became new members during the business meeting. Year books, which had been made by Grace Cowan, Lottie Lee Lamb and Lila Graham, were given to each member.

The public affairs chairman suggested the need of civic improvements which the club feels the need of being carried out. These improvements include caution signs or some method of slowing the speed on 5th street near and passing Jefferson school, to stop the practice flying of planes over the city; the trimming of all trees along sidewalks so the branches will not be in the way of pedestrians and the putting up of street signs with names and numbers.

Miss Lottie Lee Lamb, finance chairman, presented the budget to the club for the year 1946-47, which includes national and local projects; also Red Cross, Community Chest, Infantile Paralysis Fund, Cancer Campaign, etc.

The local club has been invited to meet with the Eugene group on the evening of October 17th. At the close of the evening refreshments were served by Nell Bukowski, Edna Burleson and Alice Breedlove.
