High Costs Eyed in Farm Outlook Analyzed by OSC

Both farm prices and farm costs have advanced sharply in the past year, it is shown in the annual outlook analysis for spring planted annual and perennial crops just issued by the agricultural extension service at O.S.C. The outlook report contains sections on grain and hay crops, potatoes and truck crops, forage crop seeds, tree fruits and nuts and some other specialty crops.

Although some farm products declined in price, others advanced to bring the general level up 24 per cent during the year, reaching 246 per cent of the 1935-1939 level in January.

During the same period the general level of farm costs in Oregon rose 11 per cent. Farm wage rates in the state were 354 per cent of the 1935-1939 average, while the United States average of other farm costs stood at 168 per cent of the prewar level. By giving labor a weight of 25 per cent it appears that the general level of all Oregon farm costs is about 215 per cent of 1935-1939. This —Picture courtesy Clark's Studio.

The Mason real estate office at 617 Main St., will celebrate its first anniversary March 16th and rounds out the first year by selling real estate valued at $635,965.00 and hopes to beat this figure during the coming year.

By adjusting farm operations some farmers may hold net farm income up in 1947-48, but on the whole it is probable that net farm income from 1947 production will not be as great as from farm marketings during the 1946-47 season. The volume of production is expected to continue large, but demand, both domestic and foreign, is expected to weaken somewhat.

The report contains several tables and charts of basic data, including figures showing the relationship between the national disposable income and the farm value of foods. Another table shows the 1946 level of production of various farm products in percentages of 1935-1939 output. A copy is available free from any county agent or from the college.
