NAVY RESERVE OPEN

With the ending of the Selective Service law, the Navy Department has opened the ranks of the new Naval Reserve to include those men who were subject to call under that law.
Previous service with some branch of the armed forces is not required for eligibility, but a man must pass a physical and mental examination, and be between the ages of 17 and 40 if he has not had such service.
Those men who would like to become acquainted with Naval activities and procedure, without interruption of their civil pursuits, are invited to call at the Eugene Navy Recruiting Station for further information.

Due to long-life black heat elements, Fowler Electric Water Heaters are setting new service records.
