

COOKERY CORNER

Here's a luscious pudding for those bread crusts you've been saving. Roll them fine; add the sweet juice and tangy rind of oranges, and it's a pudding supreme. The recipe is given elsewhere on this page.

By Frances Martin
When you want aid in making your meals varied and nutritious despite higher prices and conservation programs turn to oranges. Yes, this golden tide of fruit from the south is indeed a lifesaver with a hundred helps for the harassed homemaker.

Color, content and food value are added to every course of the meal when oranges are used. For instance, a fresh orange and raisin sauce does dramatic things to a serving of tongue. Consider, too, the many salads that add just the zest needed for winter meals when oranges or orange juice are used in the making.

As proof of the pudding is in the eating, let's see how oranges really do all we say by making

ORANGE BREAD PUDDING
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup orange juice
Grated rind of 1 orange
2 eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar
Soak bread crumbs in milk until soft; then mix to a smooth consistency. Add orange juice and rind. Beat egg yolks well and beat in sugar; add to bread crumb mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into greased baking dish (1 quart); set in pan of hot water and bake in a 375 degree oven about 40 minutes. Serve warm, plain or with your favorite pudding sauce. Makes 1 servings.

CITRUS COFFEE CAKE
2 1/2 cups sifted flour
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
6 tablespoons shortening
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup orange juice
Combine 1/2 cup flour with brown sugar, cinnamon and 1 teaspoon orange rind. Cut in 2 tablespoons of the shortening to make a crumbly mixture. Sift together remaining flour, sugar, salt and baking powder; add remaining orange rind and cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal. Beat egg and combine with milk and orange juice. Stir quickly into dry ingredients and mix only enough to moisten. (Do not beat.) Turn mixture into a greased loaf pan, sprinkle brown sugar mixture over top and bake in a 375 degree oven 35 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 6 servings.

DESSERT SALAD
2 cups orange sections
2 winter pears, peeled and sliced
2 red apples, cored and cut in sections
Shredded lettuce
1/4 cup chopped dates
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
1/2 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped maraschino cherries
Arrange orange sections pears and apples alternately on shredded lettuce. Sprinkle with dates. Blend cream cheese with orange juice, add chopped cherries and serve over the salad as a dinner accompaniment instead of dessert. Serves 6.

THOUGHTLETS
By Earl B. Balch

Representative Jesse Wolcott of Michigan announces that he will introduce a measure calling for a monetary conference of the sixteen European nations. Mr. Wolcott believes a conference to stabilize the currency of these countries is necessary before aid is sent to Europe. This would be very wise legislation.

In the opinion of this columnist, General Eisenhower has reached the heights of extreme greatness in refusing to be a candidate for the presidency.

It is cheering to know that some effort is being made to form a United States of Europe even though the movement at present is rather feeble.

It is well to take thought that in India where Moslem and Hindu mobs fight, that the Christians are received by either group when giving aid to the wounded and suffering.

There is nothing that will establish the good will of the peoples of impoverished Europe more than the many shipments of food, clothing and medicines by America, individuals and groups that can have no possible political meaning.

The man who harps about "charity begins at home," thinks only of benefits that come to himself.

No real reform was ever achieved by intellect alone. Emotion is necessary in putting any achievement over.

Still Too Few Nurses
There are 153,000 registered professional nurses, members of the American Nurses' association, but despite this fact only 28 states now have laws providing licensure for practical nurses. Only two states have laws requiring licensure of all who nurse for hire. There are now 1,250 state accredited schools of nursing.
