White tapers burned in wrought iron candelabra at each side of the altar. The ceremony was read by Henry A. Lynch Jr., Church of Christ minister. The candles were lighted by Messrs. Ole Gullickson and Dick Crepeau.

and bustle back. Her lace edged fingertip veil fell from a seed pearl tiara, with cut out hearts. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses. For something borrowed and something blue, she chose a blue sapphire lavalier.

GOLF IN THE RAIN

May 12th was a rainy day for a change. But nine brave ladies braved the elements for nine holes of golf at the local course. After a delicious luncheon, especially the tamale pie, we fared forth to play. We continued till an almost cloudburst forced us to take refuge on the club house porch. Mrs. Hap Hayes mired down on No. 8 fairway so we almost had to call a plumber to extricate her. But this fairway is nothing compared to the quagmire to be found in front of the Forester home on West Main Street. Both Belle Burkholder and Gergetta Funk sunk to their knees in this. Mrs. Forester fell into it too and numerous requests for help meet no response from the city engineer. If Cottage Grove can't exist without a city manager why not swap the one we have for a superintendent of bursted water mains, and mud-holes in our streets.

Barbara Hill tried in vain to oust Jean Londahl from the top rung of the ladder. Jean was just unbeatable this day. She won the prize for closest approach on No. 5, and had also the lowest score. Lottie Thompson who said she had moved away won the lady golfer trophy with next closest approach to the pin. We will miss Lottie. Frances Hunter challenged Vera Ziebeck but failed to dislodge Vera from her place on the ladder. It is said that more golfers will come out to play when we have tournaments. We suggest they come out now and get some practice. Vera's niece, Mrs. George R. Conrad, a newcomer, came out to play. She is to be commended for braving the stormy weather.

We will stage play once a week now, every Wednesday instead of the second Wednesday in the month. Let's see more out, are webfoots afraid of Oregon rain? —Belle Burkholder, Pres. Ladies Golf Club.
