

Eighty Percent Rejected in First Peacetime Draft

Eighty per cent of the men called up in Oregon for the first peacetime draft have been rejected in physical examinations, selective service officials said at Portland Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rea, state director said that of 147 called up only 32 passed, leaving the state short of the November draft quota. A second group will be called up Oct. 25 to make up the deficiency and to fill the December quota of 124.

Officials explained the high number of rejections by saying physical standards for the peacetime army are higher than in the war.

They added that the first group called — 25-year-olds — also included many rejected in wartime. Rilea said 297 men would be called up for examination Oct. 25.

CHEAP BOX SILO WORKS WELL

Alsea — A practical above-the-ground silo for grass silage was built here by Cris Baune for just 75 dollars. The silo is essentially just a 9 x 22 foot box, 11 feet high, made of planks and heavy timbers spiked and wired together. The silo was filled with grass, clover vetch and oats last spring. When opened recently it showed very little spoilage, reports County Agent Stonewall Jackson.

Sin with the multitude, and your responsibility and guilt are as great and as truly personal as if you alone had done the wrong.

The object of punishment is threefold: for just retribution; for the protection of society; for the reformation of the offender.

OUT OF WORK — A toppled victim of technological unemployment is the former refuse burner at Weyerhaeuser Timber Company's mill number one at Longview, Washington. Conveyors now carry to important processing plants the sawmill leftovers once feeding the burner's flames, which have been dead for many years. The finishing blow to the obsolete structure was given recently when the last of its bricks was hauled away by salvage crews, to serve a more useful purpose elsewhere.

GROWING TREES FOR TOMORROW

A NEW timber crop is growing on our lands where mature trees have been harvested. These new trees will be ready for harvesting in about 80 years. Some will be cut as thinnings in 40 or 50 years for poles, piling and pulpwood. The thinning process allows more space and sunshine so that remaining trees grow faster.

Weyerhaeuser grows trees as a crop on a long range program. We have stands of timber at every stage of growth on our tree farms. Careful studies indicate that timber is growing at a rate that will insure permanent, sustained production.

In the Douglas fir region blocks of seed trees are left to reforest harvested areas. Seedlings are planted by hand to fill in the gaps—caused by fires or lack of seed sources. Fire detection systems, fire-fighting equipment and trained crews are always on the job during the dry months to prevent and put out fire.

We are making every effort to insure that our plants will operate continuously. We are planning for and believe that we will have as much timber to harvest a hundred years from now as we have today.

TO HELP INSURE A PERMANENT INDUSTRY WE-

Operate Tree Farms—to provide a never ending timber supply for our mills. The forested crop is harvested, reseeded, harvested, reseeded—in about 80-year cycles.

Diversify Our Manufacturing—in order to use all of the tree. The aim is to build manufacturing centers in each of our operating areas so that on one millsite we can make useful products from low value as well as high value material.

Develop New Products—to increase the "take" from each acre of forest land harvested. A staff of engineers and scientists spend all of their time in this work. More products mean more steady jobs.

Develop Permanent Markets—to be reasonably certain that Weyerhaeuser products are in steady demand year in and year out, in good times and bad. We work toward consistent high quality, and apply modern selling methods to create customer demand.
