Farm Production Must Be Efficient To Meet Downward Price Trend

Recent downward price trends in the prices farmers receive for their products makes it imperative that individual farm production be made as efficient as is possible. The Agricultural Conservation Program offers each and every farmer the springboard—the opportunity—to increase the efficiency of his own farm, according to Ernest E. Schrenk, Chairman, Lane County Agriculture Conservation Association.

Assistance in carrying out large number of soil conserving and erosion control practices is offered during 1949 by the local association. Many of these practices, such as plowing under green manure crops, seeding of permanent pastures, application of nitrogen to newly seeded pastures and many others, are not only erosion control practices but in turn build up the fertility of the soil.

Schrenk urges all farmers, who are intending to carry out conservation practices in 1949, to sign up for these practices prior to the time work is started. Prior inspections are required for green manure crops, sod waterways, tile and open-ditch drainage, clearing land for pasture, and other permanent practices. Signing up two to three weeks before a practice is started allows the field supervisor time to make a prior inspection of the practice intended and assist the operator on specifications, etc. Practices cannot be approved by the Committee unless the farmer indicates the practice intended, units, time of completion, etc.

Other practices listed in the 1949 Lane County Handbook are application of phosphate to biennial and perennial grasses and legumes, weed control practices—chemical and clean cultivation, construction of erosion control dams and dikes, sod waterways and irrigation reorganization and leveling projects.

Of these, all major projects planned by the farmer for which assistance is to be given such as dikes, dams, riprap, some sod waterways, irrigation reorganization and leveling projects, require County Committee specifications and approval. The Committee ordinarily meets on Friday at 10:00 a.m. and all cooperators planning these types of projects are urged to call or arrange to meet with the committee and discuss the project with them. Technical assistance is available within limitation but is usually available in time if the project is presented to the committee a few weeks in advance of the time work is to be done.

Projects covering more than one farm can be combined under a pooling agreement with the entire project being completed at one operation and the various operators sharing in payment assistance to the same degree they share on the cost. One two-mile open ditch drainage pooling agreement project is now in the process of completion in the Coburg area.

It is planned that bulk lime spreading operations will be handled in the past two years. At present there is some question as to the source of the lime for this year but the Association has been assured that the cost of the lime spread on the farm will be at the same rates as in 1948. It is entirely possible that a lime supply closer at hand will become available during the year and if this should happen a decrease in total cost of liming is anticipated. The fact that total lime costs will remain the same while the payment rates for 1949 have been increased from $4.00 to $5.00 per ton in the Valley counties and from $5.00 to $6.00 per ton in the Blachly and Coast communities.

should encourage all operators needing lime to start planning their 1949 needs, dates of application, etc. Orders for lime should be placed at the earliest date possible with the Lane County Agricultural Conservation Office, Public Market Building, Eugene, Oregon. Most of the lime will probably be spread in July, August and September.

Milk Producers Make 4-H Awards

"More 4-H Dairy Clubs" is one of the aims of the Lane County Milk Producers Association. At a recent board meeting the directors of the association went on record as being active in building up 4-H clubs, especially in dairy projects. The Board recognized that these 4-H dairy members are future dairymen and discussed ways of encouraging more dairying among boys and girls of Lane County.

The Milk Producers have announced that they will provide a curry comb and brush to each new 4-H dairy exhibitor at the Lane County Fair, Western Lane Fair and the South Lane Fair. This award is to be an incentive for the first year dairy club members to show their dairy heifers whether or not they win big prizes and ribbons.
