PROTECT YOUR CAR WITH RICHFIELD

RUST-PROOF GASOLINES

RUSTED IN ORDINARY GASOLINE

This steel rod is heavily coated with rust after special 48-hour laboratory test in ordinary gasoline containing a small amount of added water. Rust also attacks the gasoline tank and fuel system of your car.

PROTECTED IN RICHFIELD GASOLINE

Rod shows no sign of rust after an identical 48-hour laboratory test in Richfield gasoline containing amazing RD-119. Before test, the same amount of water was added to prove conclusively the superior protection you get with Richfield Rust-Proof gasoline.

RUST in automobile fuel systems puts thousands of carburetors, fuel pumps and gasoline tanks on the junk pile. Unseen rust causes expensive tune-ups and repairs. Rust drags down the performance of your car, robbing you of power and gasoline mileage.

WHAT CAUSES RUST? Fuel system rust and corrosion result from moisture in your gasoline, caused largely by condensation.

HOW DOES RUST RUIN...

- GASOLINE TANKS? Metal-destroying rust starts leaks in tank bottoms. Rust particles are carried from gasoline tank to fuel pump and carburetor. Richfield Gasoline Stops Rust!
- CARBURETORS? Rust and corrosion attack up to 3 dozen different carburetor parts. Sharp particles ruin the precision fit of moving parts. Rust plugs tiny tubes and passages, some smaller than a common pin. Richfield Gasoline Stops Rust!
- FUEL PUMPS? Rust clogs strainer screens... wears out fast-moving parts. When bits of rust cause check-valves to leak, your fuel pump fails on hills and at high speeds. Richfield Gasoline Stops Rust!

How Does Richfield Rust-Proof Gasoline Stop Rust?

It contains Sinclair RD-119, an amazing new rust-preventative. RD-119 coats the inside of your car's fuel system with an invisible, polymolecular layer that prevents rust.

Now... protect your car. Stop needless repair bills. Prevent power-stealing rust. Fill up—today—with Richfield Rust-Proof gasoline!
