POLICE CHIEF TALKS TO METHODIST MEN MON.

A chicken noodle dinner at 6:30 Monday preceded the regular meeting of the Methodist Men and their friends.

The meal was prepared by Mmes. Charles Akerblade, Elmer Kent, Harold Hicks and Newton Land. Mrs. Akerblade and Mrs. Kent served.

The men met in the church parlor after the dinner where they had group singing. After the sing Police Chief Nordstrom spoke to the group on juvenile work. Chief Nordstrom recently attended a course on juvenile schooling in Eugene.

"While most authorities placed more than 50 per cent of the blame on the parents, it is the responsibility of not only the parents, but of the schools, churches and every citizen interested in our youth," was a part of Chief Nordstrom's talk.

The Chief went on to say that of the many cases handled by the Lane county detention home Cottage Grove and community contributed fewer than the average of the total sections included. The police department was highly complimented on their interest in this work.

A round the room discussion followed the address.

The next meeting of the group will be held June 19. Mr. W. A. Woodard has been asked to speak on the recent trip abroad taken by him and his wife.

While the meetings are sponsored by the Methodist Men anyone wishing to attend is invited.
