YOU'RE TELLING ME!

INSURANCE statistics show married women live longer than unmarried women. Probably it's easier to make a man make a living than to make a living.

Having to look out for only one man may have something to do with it.

At any rate husbands can now say, "I've given you the best years of your life."

Riad Ghali, the Coptic Christian who married the Moslem Egyptian princess, started having in-law trouble before he even had a honeymoon.

As in too many such cases, Ghali's troubles show signs of pyramiding.

Farsuk threatens to cut off all the princess's income. Love may be sweet, but this couple can't live off Cairo.

The way it looks, if girl commoners aren't good enough for Farouk, he isn't going to let men commoners be good enough for his sister.
