Cool Comfort

Crinkled cotton housecoat.

By VERA WINSTON

CRINKLED cotton, that tubs nicely and looks well without benefit of an iron, is a good choice for a summer housecoat, the sort of cool, comfortable affair that is so nice to come home to after a busy day. This one is in blue and is pointed up with white Venice type lace at the hip and yoke pockets. It has a small rolled collar and buttoned closing to the waist. A half belt ties in tab ends in front. The fully flared skirt is zipper fastened to the hem.

Don't be "PWPF"

(Penny Wise and Paint Foolish)

The true value of any paint is—not in the paint's price per gallon—but in the paint's hiding power, spreading rate and length of service it gives.

What appears to be a paint "bargain" today ceases to be a bargain later when extra coats are needed for proper coverage, when more gallons must be bought to complete the job, or when early or frequent repainting is necessary.

Remember, your best paint "buy" is always the BEST paint you can buy. And remember, too, there are no better paints than our fine, dependable REPUBLIC PAINTS. Use them always!

The power is in the Mercury!

The real power is not in the engine alone. The real power is built into the car itself. Does this sound strange? Well, look at it this way. Mercury is designed as a unit. The engine is one part of that unit. The springs and frame and body and interior appointments are all parts of that unit. Each part is carefully engineered to function smoothly with every other part. The distribution of weight is scientifically controlled—for eager pickup, for stability on curves, and for safety in sudden stops. The gear ratios are precisely calculated to prevent strain and wear. The inner workings of the engine are painstakingly calibrated for flashing performance and lasting economy. The result is a beautifully integrated motor car. A car that is winning "stock" speed trials in Florida one minute, and winning the Economy Sweepstakes in the Grand Canyon Run the next.
