Crews Take Eggs From Spawning Rainbow Trout to Stock McKenzie

Over 4,000,000 trout eggs have been obtained from wild rainbow by Oregon State Game Commission spawning crews. The last of four spring egg-take operations are now being completed at Diamond, East and Paulina Lakes.

Diamond Lake spawners have produced nearly 2,000,000 eggs. The fish are trapped as they enter tributary streams and the lake outlet, Lake Creek. The spawned-out fish are returned to the lake.

At East and Paulina Lakes, spawning rainbow seined from shoal areas have been stripped of 370,000 eggs. Egg-take crews must be on hand at these lakes when the ice breaks up, for spawning takes place immediately afterwards. A sno-cat was used to transport the crews and their supplies into the lakes in mid-May.

Lampblack was used at East Lake to hasten the ice break-up. An airplane dusted the fine soot over the surface of the lake in long strips. The altitude of the lake, 6,400 feet, prevents early melting of the heavy ice cover, and many of the trout are overripe before spawning crews are able to

Midgets Drop Two: Scio, Eugene Are Next on Schedule

The Midget baseball team ran into a little tough luck last week.

On Thursday, June 22, they traveled to Brownsville and met defeat to the tune of 13-3. During the game here with Albany Midgets last Sunday, the local boys were able to get only one hit off the pitching of Albany's Forrester. Final score was 14-0.

Next on the schedule for the midgets, who are co-sponsored by Floyd Githens Motor Co. and the American Legion, is a game at Scio on Thursday, beginning at 6 p.m. July 9 the lads will take on the Eugene Midgets at the local high school diamond. Play will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Although each team got seven hits in the Brownsville game, the host team was able to score a surplus of runs due to wild pitching and infield errors by the Cottage Grove players. Leading hitters for the local boys were Roger Gamble and Lester Goff, each with two singles. Lloyd Russell pitched the first 3 1/2 innings for the Grove squad, and Goff took over for the remaining 3 1/2 frames.

Sunday's game was almost a shut-out by Albany. Clarence Smith was the only Grove batter to get a hit off Albany's red-hot pitcher. The visitors tallied 12 hits.

Midget Auto Racing Moves to Ball Park

Eugene, June 26—The Oregon Midget Racing Association, through its local manager, Jim Harris, announced here today arrangements with the Eugene Baseball Club for the use of Bethel Park for a series of midget races at the ball park on Monday nights.

Harris said that the change in sites for the auto race programs was made after Jim Healey, a midget driver from Eugene, suffered serious injuries in a race over a rutty track at the fairgrounds last Sunday.

"I will not ask the drivers to endanger their lives on the fairgrounds track again, and I believe the ball park will make an ideal location for the races," Harris said. Harris, in the meantime, has asked for a hearing with the Lane county fair board.

The track at the home of the Eugene Far West League ball club will be a one-fifth mile oval with seating for 3500 spectators and under excellent lighting. Harris said that the midget association has agreed to run here every Monday night, with the possible exception of one or two scheduled Monday night games.

Capacity Crowd for NW Shrine Game

PORTLAND, June 26 (Special)—Committee members are shooting for a capacity crowd when the Oregon All-Stars and Portland All-Stars meet in the third annual Shriners' hospital football game here at Multnomah stadium Saturday night, August 26.

Plans for the annual gridiron battle are under way with the announcement by James J. Richardson, managing director, of the formal acceptance of invitations by all players and coaches.

The Portland team will be coached by Ted Ogdahl, who led Grant to the state prep championship last fall. His assistants will be Eric Waldorf of Jefferson and Ed Ryan of Lincoln.

Don Mabce, whose La Grande team lost to Grant in the finals of the state playoffs, will be head coach of the Oregon All-Stars, assisted by Jim Davis of Hillsboro and Hank Nilson of Eugene.

Richardson recently announced the acceptance of positions as trainers by Bill Robertson of Oregon State college and Bob Officer of the University of Oregon. Robertson served in that capacity for the past two games and has been a token of good luck. In 1948 he was with the upstate team when it won the first game 35 to 13 and last year he was with the Portland All-Stars when they evened the series with a 19 to 0 victory. Officer, who broke in at Oregon under the late Colonel Bill Hayward, recently returned to his former position. This year Officer will be with the city team and Robertson with the upstate squad. All proceeds go to the Portland unit of the Shriners' hospital for crippled children.

Just Fishin'

Things didn't go very good for fishermen last week end. At least that's what we hear. However, conditions should improve considerably this week.

Those who have given up Diamond Lake as a waste of time may be interested to know that it is making a comeback. Fish have been caught recently that average around 16 to 20 inches. Last week end Farney Edwards pulled in two nice ones of 18 and 21 1/2 inches.

For best results at Diamond, use the following lures: Andy Reekers, size 2; red-head trout-ornia, flat fish, or Rusellure Diamond looks like a pretty good bet for the Fourth of July week end.

East and Paulina lakes have been pretty good with the fish going for German browns. Over at Coos Bay, striped bass are being hauled in at a good rate. Charley Peck caught two pretty good sized ones last week.

On the Deschutes, it's good between Big river bridge and Benham Fall. It's best from boats making downstream floats. Trolling is also effective using Andy Reekers, flatfish, or spinners and worms.

If we don't mention a fishing spot in which you are interested, drop us a card at the Sentinel office and we'll try to find out for you.

Here's the situation in the Willamette Valley and other parts of the state:

Willamette Valley

Good bass catches are being made in valley streams and lakes on surface plugs. Fishing is improving rapidly on the North Fork and Little North Fork of the Santiam river. Wet flies and eggs are best. The Lower Santiam has been good on troll. The Yamhill river and Mill creek have been producing nice cutthroat catches on flies and eggs and several limit catches have been reported.

The McKenzie and its tributaries remain high, although the water is reasonably clear. The largest individual catches have been taken on gray fly and bucktail coachman. In eastern Lane county all streams are in fine condition with the exception of Salt creek which is high and roily. Good catches have been made on the Middle and North Fork of the Willamette the past few days on flies, spinners, and other lures. Marilyn lakes near Willamette Pass have been good.

Coastal Section

Striped bass fishing on Coos Bay now is good. Anglers are asked to send any tags found on the bass to the Fish Commission Laboratory, Charleston, Oregon, along with lengths and location of catch. Trout angling on streams in this area continues poor in general. Surf and bay fishing for sea perch, flounder, and keep fish continues good. Some nice trout catches are reported from the Smith river and the Upper Nehalem.

Southern Oregon

Water conditions are good to excellent in the Upper Umpqua area. The South Umpqua is clear above Jackson creek and trout fishing is good. Many fine catches have been made recently, mostly on bait, but also on wet flies. Trout fishing is good in the Upper Rogue and lower tributaries. Water is clear. The best catches are on brown hackle flies and bucktail coachman. Salmon fishing is fair from Gold Hill to Shady Cove, but poor in the Grants Pass to Galice area.

Deer Lose Gentle Tendencies When They No Longer Have Fear of Man

Three children were recently attacked by a "pet deer" near St. Helens, and Wayne Young, Oregon State Game Commission agent, was called upon to dispose of the unruly deer.

Young, described the deer as an abandoned yearling doe. She wore a reflector studded collar about her neck. The doe's ill temper prompted its desertion by the owners, according to Young.

The doe first trailed after a five year old boy, who was following his mother and older brother thru a wooded area along Morgan Road. Suddenly, the deer reared up and struck the child down. The brother, attracted by the boy's screams, hurried a staff at the deer, driving it off. Fortunately, the child had dropped to the ground and doubled up. Severe bruises were the small boy's only marks from the encounter. Shortly afterwards, this same doe struck out at two other children, who approached it.

Another recent deer encounter occurred when Willamette Valley game agents, Jim Negley and Francis Ives, were called upon to pick up a captive buck. This deer was held under permit, but the owner, who had bottle fed it as a tiny fawn, could no longer trust the animal. When approached in its enclosure, the enraged deer defied the two game agents with slashing hooves and antlers before it could be hauled away for release in the Tillamook Burn.

When freed, the buck stood its ground, ready to attack the first man that left the truck.

Actions such as this are typical of "civilized" deer and should serve as a warning to people with ideas of rearing fawns as gentle pets, states Robert Mace, Chief of Big Game for the Game Commission. Mace attributes these actions to a deer's natural aggressiveness. Once a captive deer loses its fear of man, it can no longer be considered gentle, continued Mace.

State Police and Game Agents throughout Oregon are now retrieving fawns picked up by sympathetic individuals suffering from an illusion that each tiny fawn lying in the woods has been abandoned. Doe deer leave their fawns in hiding during the first two or three weeks, returning at frequent intervals so that the fawn may suckle. It is against the law to hold these baby deer in captivity.
