Holiday Accident
Danger is Great,
Governor Warns

Oregonians will be bucking the worst traffic dangers of the year during the Fourth of July holiday weekend, Governor Douglas McKay and Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry warned today.

In a joint plea, both officials called on motorists to cancel the rush and hurry in plans for out-of-town trips as the big week-end nears.

"Allow plenty of time to reach your destination without hurrying," the governor and secretary suggested. "Traffic will be too heavy for even momentary chance taking."

H. G. Mason, superintendent of state police, says all major arterial highways will receive extra patrol during the weekend in an effort to hold accidents to a minimum. Me a nwhile, vacationing tourists were being urged to stay off the roads, if possible, during the holiday.

An estimated 36 million vehicles will be jamming the streets and highways throughout the nation. For many, the holiday will last four days.
