OREGON CATTLEMEN TO HOLD 2ND ANNUAL RANGE TOUR AUG. 21-22

The Oregon Cattlemen Association will hold its second annual range and ranch tour in Klamath County August 21 and 22. The Klamath Cattlemen Association will be host, according to Dorman Turner, secretary of the state association.

The purpose of the tour is twofold. First, it gives members of the association a chance to see ranch operations in other parts of the state other than their own. Second, sportsmen and business men of Oregon are invited to join the cattlemen on this tour. This gives the cattle producers a chance to give the facts about the cattle industry to the consumers.

Air Force Sets Up Two Processing Centers for West

Air Force reservists from the western United States being recalled to active duty will be processed at one of two newly-established personnel processing centers recently set up on the West Coast, it was announced today from Fourth Air Force Headquarters by Maj. Gen. John E. Upston, commanding general.

One of these centers, the 2219th Personnel Processing Center, is located at the Portland Airport, Portland, Ore., and is commanded by Lt. Col. Edward H. Nett. The other, the 2218th Personnel Processing Center, is located at Hamilton Air Force Base, California, and is under the command of Lt. Col. Sidney F. Wagon.

Some Air Force reservists being called to active service are sent direct to an organization for duty. However, as many of these former Air Force men have been out of the service for nearly five years, there is a certain amount of administrative work that must be completed before the individual can be assigned to a unit for duty. Physical check-ups must be accomplished, records brought up to date, new clothing issued, and many other routine matters taken care of before the airman is ready for full time duty.

July Traffic Deaths Show Big Increase

Traffic fatalities in Oregon leaped to new highs during July with more than a 100 per cent increase over deaths recorded in July of last year and a 67 per cent increase over June fatalities, Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry reported today.

Preliminary count of last month's deaths reached 50, the worst July on record. Newbry said the toll may go higher: if delayed reports of fatalities are received or if persons now listed as injured later die as a result of their injuries.

May, June and July, Newbry continued, have been tragic months in the state's accident picture with 31 deaths in May, 30 in June, and 51 in July.

Earlier in the year, it seemed probable that Oregon would continue the downward trend in traffic deaths first noted in 1947. Now we are faced with the possibility that this year's accident fatalities will skyrocket to new records unless motorists exercise increased caution on the streets and highways, Newbry concluded.

Unemployment in Oregon Hits Lowest Mark Since 1945

Renewed harvest demands and a general business and industrial expansion during the past month cut the number of active job-seekers to 21,000—lowest August 1 figure in five years—the Oregon State Employment Service announced today. With one exception, October 1, 1948, it was the lowest monthly estimate since the end of World War II.

A year ago 40,000 persons were out of work and on August 1, 1948, the count was 23,400. Only a month ago local offices reported 29,400 unemployed, while the peak last February was 94,000.

Construction, lumber and logging, trade, and food processing accounted for most of the recent pick-up, but employment in fruit and vegetable canneries continues to lag behind recent seasons.

The metropolitan area showed the biggest decrease—4,000—in unemployment last month, but more timber and farm jobs dropped Eugene from 4,700 to 1,675. A labor dispute settlement at Klamath Falls put 1,100 back to work, while bigger salmon and tuna deliveries at Astoria resulted in a decline to 380 unemployed, lowest in several years. With the exception of Lebanon, Oregon City, Pendleton and Freewater, most areas reported fewer persons looking for jobs.

Increasing demands for bean pickers through the Willamette Valley and other prospective harvests are expected to make further inroads on the unemployed during the next few weeks. Salem, Albany, Eugene and McMinnville ask for 2,500 additional bean field workers next week, while Hillsboro, Lebanon, and Portland expect increased demands soon. Medford will need several hundred pear pickers about August 14, and a little later many jobs will be provided by hops in the Salem and Grants Pass areas.

Unfilled job openings also picked up markedly, mainly because of the demand for skilled and semi-skilled help. More than 2,000 non-farm jobs found no available workers as compared with 1,467 a month ago and 987 a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wineinger and their children Donna and Charles, left Tuesday for North and South Twin Lakes in eastern Oregon. They will be gone about a week.

Frank Dailey, manager of the Culp Creek store, left Wednesday by plane for Detroit, Mich., to get a new car. His nephew from Wisconsin will accompany him back to Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Botts and three children of Monterey Park, Calif., visited her sister, Mrs. Vic Doolittle and family for two days. RECORD NUMBER TAKE OSC EXAMINATIONS FOR HIGHER DEGREES

Oregon State College—The largest number of students ever to take qualifying examinations for advanced degrees in one term in the school of education was reported by Dean F. R. Zeran of the school of education at the close of the regular O.S.C. summer session. Dean Zeran, who is also director of the summer session, reported that 110 graduate students had taken the qualifying exams this summer preparatory to going ahead with academic work for masters degrees in education. The regular O.S.C. eight-week summer term ended the second week in August with hundreds of visiting students from the middle-west and other western states returning to their homes or spending a brief vacation on the coast. A post-session course for graduate students in education is scheduled from August 14 to 25.
