The local Business and Professional Women's club will observe National Business Women's Week next Monday night, Oct. 16 at the regular dinner meeting at seven o'clock at the Rainbow Cafe.

State and local legislation on the November ballot will be the subject of talks before the club members Monday. The meeting will feature W. M. Tugman, editor of the Eugene Register-Guard, who will talk on state legislation, and Richard L. Thwing, Cottage Grove attorney, who will speak on the proposed measure for a new sewerage and drainage system in the city.
