Duck Soup Made With Giblets

By ALICE DENHOFF

TENDER, tasty Long Island ducklings are in the market in happy abundance, which is good news for those who favor fine fare at a sensible price level.

Clip this recipe for a delicious soup to make with the giblets sometime when you aren't making gravy, or when you cook the duck without giblets for some other reason. For 4 servings, place 2 c. duck broth, contents of 3 oz. can of chopped broiled mushrooms, and minced duck giblets in saucepan. Bring to boil over moderate heat.

Meanwhile, blend 2 tsp. duck fat, 2 tsp. flour, 1/2 tsp. onion salt, 1/4 tsp. celery salt and 1/2 tsp. pepper. Add to hot broth, cook, stirring constantly, until soup thickens slightly. When ready to serve, coarsely cut 1/2 bunch water cress or 1/2 c. young spinach leaves, and add to soup. Serve at once. If you have skinned your duck before cooking it, cook the skin along with neck and giblets in 3 c. boiling, salted water until tender, about 45 min. Strain broth. Allow fat to rise, and pour it off.

Exotic Dish

For something quite exotic and unusual, try curried duck, a fine recipe for food fanciers. With sharp pointed knife cut through skin of a 5-6 lb. (dressed weight) Long Island duckling. Ease knife along center of breast from neck to vent. Loosen skin by pulling away from flesh and at the same time, running knife underneath. Cut skin where necessary but keep flesh intact, then cut duck in serving pieces. Cook giblets, neck, skin and fat in 3 c. boiling, salted water, until giblets are tender, about 45 min. That's the duck broth. Strain broth. Allow fat to rise and pour it off. Place 1/4 c. duck fat in large frying pan over moderate heat. Brown pieces of duck meat lightly in fat. Add 1/2 c. minced onion, continue cooking about 5 min. Combine and add 2 c. duck broth or water, top kitchen bouquet and 1/2 c. seedless raisins.

Cover tightly, and bring to boil. Let simmer over low heat until duck is tender, about 45 min. Remove pieces of duck from pan. Blend together 6 tsp. flour, 1/2 tsp. curry powder, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/2 c. water. Add gradually to liquid in pan, stirring constantly until liquid thickens. Correct seasoning if necessary. Replace duck in sauce.

Just before serving, add 3 bananas, cut diagonally in one-inch pieces. Let cook 5 min., and serve with hot, cooked rice. If too rich, add 1/4 c. currant jelly with the broth, and 1/2 cup lemon juice with the flour, omitting curry hers. Then leave out the bananas at the end.
