IT'S ALL YOURS

Do you happen to have $1589 to spare? That will be the average American family's share of the $71,000,000,000 1952 Federal budget which the Administration has proposed, if Congress accepts it. And this doesn't take into account state, county and municipal taxes.

According to the Census Bureau, last October 6,402,000 people—one out of every 24 persons in the nation—worked for some branch of government. And the total is substantially larger today.

The "big spenders" in government argue that the budget is air-tight, a model of economy and careful planning, and that it can't be cut anywhere without causing great damage. But the Hoover Commission has pointed the way to a $7,000,000,000 saving. Senator Byrd has presented a documented plan which would reduce the budget by about $9,000,000,000. Other authorities have come up with similar reports and recommendations.

The people have a clear choice to make. They can have a "do everything" government, with its emphasis on alleged social security from the cradle to the grave—and by the time they get through paying for it in ever-cheapening dollars they'll find that their living standards are comparable to those in England. Or they can have a government which pinches the pennies in every possible direction, and concentrates on the unavoidable essentials, such as an adequate national defense. Then we will begin to do something tangible about inflation—and we'll enormously strengthen the hard economic base on which this nation's security depends.

Take your pick—it's your money, your future, your freedom, which are at stake.

INFLATION CONTROL

In watching the efforts of the present administration to control prices, most of us have come to the conclusion there is no way to control inflation, which might be accepted by the common man. We mean by this that there are not enough people who are willing to make the necessary sacrifices to make any sort of a government effort work. Marshall Swearingen, president of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation, has given some rules for "Common Sense Inflation Control" and these rules contain some good points, but whether the suggestions would end the price spiral remains to be seen.

He says our objective is two fold: Avoid a third world war if possible, but if we are forced into it, build ourselves so strong that we will win it. And preserve our American way of life, irrespective of an all out war or a continuation of the present war of nerves. "It is impossible to segregate the two objectives and certainly one should not be done without the other," he says.

Swearingen cites as an illustration that we are well on the road to inflation that our 1940 dollar is only worth 47 cents today. The national debt nearly exceeds the national income and a child born today assumes a personal debt of over $1,800.

To further aggravate our position the farm bureau head says we are spending great sums for expendables such as airplanes, cannons instead of consumer goods and the pay rolls of the manufacturers go further into the barrel of cheap money with still nothing to buy.

Several remedies suggested for a halt in the price inflation are: Greater production with longer and harder hours for the worker, strict government economy, pay as you go taxation, effective credit control, sound management of public debt and a balanced federal budget.

ALCOHOL STUDIES

The Oregon Alcohol Educational Committee has announced a summer program for a study of the social problems related to the use of alcohol in the modern society. Attempts will be made to make a serious study of these problems by law enforcement officers, educators, ministers, social workers and others interested in the problems, which appear to be growing. A summer session will be given at Oregon State College June 18 to 29 and headed by Dr. E. M. Jellinek of Yale and Texas Christian Universities. Concurrently with the lectures in Corvallis, a series of seven free public lectures will be given at the Lincoln high school auditorium in Portland. A feature of the summer school will be an afternoon of four seminars on the subjects of pastorial counseling, alcohol education, alcohol and traffic, and therapy for alcoholism.

PROPER EATING MIGHT BE LESS EXPENSIVE

In a recent news dispatch we read of a charge leveled at the public by a noted dietician, where the dietician charged the Americans with improper eating as the cause of the present high price of meat. The charge made sense to us. He said in effect the consumer, who today is demanding the best meat the butcher has, was living on hamburger and cheaper cuts of meat ten to fifteen years ago. They are not only buying the more expensive cuts, but more of them and are eating less vegetables and other food items, which provide proper diet.

Eating too much of one thing in good times is something like hoarding in tight times, it brings on demands for controls and controls are what the little dictators in Washington thrive on. They like nothing better than to get the people in tight spots so they can slap on controls.

"One of the most potentially destructive illusions harbored by millions of Americans nowadays is that their national economy renews itself automatically. They've forgotten that private investment is what makes the system tick. You find this state of mind even in government where some men apparently believe that lack of private investment can be made up from the public Treasury."—Chicago Journal of Commerce

SURVEYING FOR TAFT

The first scouts of the 1952 presidential campaign to reach Oregon were in Salem last Friday. "To see how the land lays."

David S. Ingalls, cousin of Senator Robert A. Taft, and Ben Tate, the Ohio senator's friend and advisor, invited a score of Willamette Valley newsmen to lunch and to discuss the popularity of Taft—"just in case he should run."

"Bob is undecided," said Tate, "That's why we are here. We want to get the feel of the grassroots."

"What this country needs in the presidency is some man who will stand foursquare for the principles of American government, whether that man is Senator Taft or someone else," Ingalls said.

In a private interview Tate called attention to Senator Taft's winning campaign in 1950 when he carried the state by a heavy majority even in the industrial counties where the labor vote is heaviest. "We observe voters are pulling away from the showboat type of candidate in recent elections. That pleases us. Bob is factual and direct," Ingalls added.

Salem and Portland were the only Oregon cities the travelers were scheduled to visit in their nation-wide survey trip.

Charles P. Taft, a younger brother of Senator Taft and son of William Howard Taft, president of the United States 1909-1913, will be in Oregon June 10 to address candidates for baccalaureate and graduate degrees at the University of Oregon, Ingalls revealed. The title of his speech will be "The Rock of Our Salvation."

WEAPONS IN CELLS

Prison guards and 20 state policemen pulled a surprise raid and search Thursday on the 1,562 inmates of the Oregon state penitentiary after a tip off that an attempt to smuggle arms into the institution was planned.

The shakedown that began at 5 a.m. netted dozens of prison-made knives of various sizes, blackjacks and slip-knots.

Thursday night 300 trusties on outside jobs went on a hunger strike, refused to eat the evening meal and some refused to work. Friday morning the men refused to budge from their cells for breakfast or dinner. Friday afternoon, Prison Warden George Alexander went on a strike of his own, by announcing no meals would be prepared, a new inmate committee held a meeting with Alexander after which the convicts filed into the mess hall for an evening meal without disturbance.

NEW STATE DEPARTMENT

Harry S. Dorman, who has served the state as budget director for the past 28 months, was appointed state director of finance by the governor last Friday. He will take over his new office August 1. The law creating the new department becomes effective on that date. The department of finance will take over the printing department, purchasing department, purchasing department and restoration functions formerly administered by the state board of control, the budget department, part of the accounting and property management departments, and will set up state automobile pools where feasible.

Dorman left Wednesday for Minnesota to study the workings of the financial department of that state which has been in operation for several years. He will also study the California and New York state departments of finance.

La Verne J. Young is scheduled for appointment as budget director in the department of finance.

Dorman's salary will be $9,600 a year; Young's $7,920.

BUSSES AND TRUCKS PAY MORE

Fees collected by the state for operation of commercial vehicles over Oregon highways for the first five months of this year amounted to $2,466,152, an all-time high for the period.

Collections for last month reached $548,415, an increase of more than 25 per cent over May of 1950.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION MOVES

If you have occasion to visit the state highway commission in Salem and should ask how to get there, you no longer will be told "go to the pen and turn right." This week the commission started on a four-week job of moving into its new building located in the capitol group.

The new five-story structure is two blocks north of the Capitol.

Lamb steaks from the shoulder look like this, and are less expensive than the rib chops. Cook by braising—browning them, then adding a little water, covering and cooking until tender.

Letters to the Editor

This letter was received by Billy, in answer to his letter telling of his lost $3, which was published in last week's Sentinel.

Dear Billy: I read your letter in the Sentinel and I felt very bad about it. No, Billy, I didn't find your money.

You see when I was a little boy I didn't have very much. I sold papers and one day I lost my money just like you did. I know how it hurt.

Through the years I have been fortunate and now I don't need it. So I want you to have this $3, and be sure and buy your Daddy a Father's Day present.

You see, I was on my way to buy my Daddy a birthday present when I lost my money..
