

fashion firsts

Spring had a false start followed right on the heels by more of old man winter. But fashion never has a false start. It provides just the right costume for that bright touch under your heavier coat now that can blossom out for itself later.

This is the season for suits, and blue seems to be one of the most popular colors. In suits the real news is in jackets with the carved look, cardigan neckline. Or the Directorate suit with the high rising waist, a short, short jacket.

In dresses the ladylike look is achieved by the princess line the high rising waist.

Color news is the grey costume fitted for spring with those touches of white. White collar and cuffs, or big white frothy flower at the neck of a suit. White gloves, white heels on black patent pumps, purse with white stitching, white hat, shiny white jewelry. Underpinning for the new look, slip that is beautifully cut with full skirt and fitted bodice. Or the half slip, crinoline that stays stiff permanently. Or swishy taffeta with rows of ruffles.

Shortie

Red woolen coat.

By VERA WINSTON

THE shortie is growing in importance since it has added winter to its conquests of the seasons. This handsome coat is of bright red novelty woolen, collared, cuffed and lined with sleek, inky black Hudson seal. With it is worn a slim, straight skirt of black tweed and a matching red wool blouse for a cosy and cheerful cold weather costume.

Placing hard marshmallows in the refrigerator will soften them.

THE PRICE ON WASHINGTON'S HEAD

There are few men who would pile fortune and life on the scale of independence against the strongest nation on earth. Washington did.

He stood at the head of an army, without authority to punish or compel obedience. Actually, he had command of 13 armies, each of which was answerable to a separate colony; none of whom would commit itself to a declaration of war. He wrote to Congress who by an act on Nov. 7th, 1775 committed the Colonies to Independence. Britain called it an act of treason, punishable by death. Washington accepted this dictum.

Washington put his fortune, and his life, in the balance of a nebulous cause; he won all three. Honor him of Feb. 22nd as the man who "Stuck out his neck" that we could be free.
