The County Manager Issue

Lane county voters will have the privilege of approving or rejecting the county manager issue in the coming primary, provided the sponsors of the county manager plan have a sufficient number of registered voters and the lists on the petitions are being checked.

The county manager plan has some merits as well as demerits and we doubt the issue will be approved. It would correct some of the bad features of our county government, particularly in our county road department, where taxpayers have witnessed a rather costly experiment in concrete roads versus the macadam road in the last five or six years and we still haven't any roads to brag about. It would give this section of the county a supervisor and thus a small voice in the county government (We have not had anybody in the courthouse for fifteen or sixteen years and the chances are rather remote that we will ever have now, unless the Creswell candidate for county commissioner can make it). Sponsors of the county plan say the county manager could be employed without cost to the county, since the commissioner's court as we know it now would be abolished. The county manager could undoubtedly save money for the county on mass purchases.

On the other hand the people would lose the right to elect their county representatives. The county manager chosen might be competent or he might not be or he might be crooked or he might not be. The success or failure of the plan would hinge on the type of manager employed and the county committee chosen to select the manager would have to have better luck than the city did a few years ago.

A Funny Situation

We have had a rather peculiar situation in this vicinity for a number of years. The city government skimps and cuts every year as in the recent city budget, while the schools never seem to have any trouble in getting all funds needed to carry on an expanding program; at least no school budget has been turned down that we recall.

The situation is not so with the city. The city has patched up outmoded and worn out equipment. Except in a few instances the budget has never adequately provided needed funds and this year the budget does not make any provision for the increase in cost of living for its employees, a practice that is common with industry. It has been our observation that some councilmen vote no or fail to approve the issue either because they feel the city does not need what the issue provides or they do not understand the question. You can't run fast enough to get the average business man to take a place on the council and with a little persuasion the business man will join in cussing the city and its affairs, which seems to be a popular pastime. And yet city government is just as necessary to those of us who live and work in the city and who trade in the city as our schools, county or state or federal government.

On the other hand we point with pride to our school system and either the grade or high school can usually have whatever additional funds which the school board deems necessary to operate properly. Don't you think it is an unreasonable attitude to continue to complain about the city government, its faults or shortcomings and then refuse to approve a small tax levy to have better city government.

We have a rather serious quarrel with the council and budget members for throwing the parking meter funds into the general fund to help meet the expenses of government rather than following the initial practice of letting the meter funds care for our parking problems. The meters were installed under the administration of Dr. H. A. Hagen with the understanding that the funds thus created would go to aid traffic and off street parking. The original intention of parking meter funds is certainly not being carried out and we would not be surprised to see a move started to have the parking meters taken out, unless this situation is corrected. After all the parking meter money is spent by shoppers most of whom live out of town. The city owes it to these people to provide the convenience of easy parking as far as possible. If the city intends to enforce the parking meter ordinance and take money from the country people for the privilege of shopping in Cottage Grove, the least the city can do is to promote additional parking facilities and this can't be done when the money of the shoppers is used to pay the expenses of the city.

Evangelism 1952

Two great churches, the Methodist and Baptist, are conducting evangelistic meetings during this week and next.

In this troubled world this means one thing—a desire on the part of the church, its ministers and laymen, to gather in to Christ those who are outside the fold. It means that they know there is a very great need for the Christian way of life and they want sincerely to spread it around and share its good feelings and richness with everyone.

It is not a new thing. Its heritage goes back to the early pioneer days when religion was a very vital part of everyone's life. Revivals and evangelism sessions were a common thing. Today the shouting and waving of hands and old-time emotionalism is gone from these churches. Perhaps too far gone. But in its place is a modern evangelism, one of sincerity but quieter. Thrilling messages are still there, but they are attuned to the times.

Lay visitations are also being conducted during the evangelistic services. Church members who belong to churches elsewhere and have not transferred membership to the local group or those who stated church preferences on the last local survey will be contacted. Others also will be visited. They will be invited to services. All services are open to the public.

These visitations are a fine thing. They reawaken old feelings and stir new ones. In the San Francisco area recently Rev. Clark Enz of the local Methodist church was a guest pastor for evangelism meetings. He said about 5,000 came into the church, half converts, half transfers. Rev. William Sutterlin of the Baptist church has returned from Reedsport where he successfully conducted such meetings.

A re-awakening in everyone of the lessons taught by Jesus Christ in his life, such an important part of the Lenten and Easter season, may be studied during these meetings.

For ease from problems of a world in distress we heartily suggest you attend these meetings.

The Free Methodist church just finished its evangelism crusade, carried on recently. The pastor said that the meetings were the greatest in attendance that the church has ever had and that at least a dozen "seekers" were found. This church carries on a probation period for church membership for these "seekers" before they are admitted into the group. Field Day for the Commission on Evangelism was held Sunday, the 16th, to bring out again the importance of evangelism in the church program.

Piller Wins Trophies At Banquet Thursday

Dick Piller won both the letterman's trophy and the free throw award at the basketball banquet last Thursday night.

The Cottage Grove Lions' club sponsored the banquet, which was attended by all high school basketball players and the Jefferson grade school A squad.

Roy Heiser, a professional baseball pitcher formerly with the Portland Beavers, and Paul Durham, coach at Linfield College, were speakers at the banquet. Heiser, also a coach at Linfield, spoke on professional baseball. Importance of cooperation on the part of high school athletes was emphasized by Mr. Durham.

Ray Simonsen, former CG athlete now attending Linfield college, attended the banquet with the college coaches.

Ray Duer received the captains award. Richard Thomas got the B squad free throw award. Wes Malcolm is on the first district team and J. C. Isley is on the third district team.

Art Schaeffer was toastmaster and Bill Veatch was master of ceremonies for the entertainment. Miss Joy Grimstad, high school choir director arranged the program.

A march and "Little Brown Jug" were played by a trombone quartet consisting of Ida Costin, Charles Costin, Leroy Costrell and Larry Mostachetti.

Jerry Montgomerie, Marvin Hayes, Joel Pynch and Bob Kelly composed a boys' barber shop quartet, which sang "In the Evening by the Moonlight" and "Good-bye, My Coney Island Baby."

"Clarinet Polka" and "Comin' Round the Mountain" were numbers presented by a clarinet duet, Francis Summers and Margie Denney. "Basin Street" a piano and accordion number, was presented by Bill Veatch and Bob Kelly. Carmen Grewelle, Pat Kent, Bill Veatch and Bob Kelly composed a ukelele quartet, which played and sang "Five Foot Two" and "Simple Melody."

Case Is Dismissed Involving Barber

One charge in Cottage Grove Justice Court was dropped this week, with trial dates for three other cases yet to be set.

The charge of buying and giving liquor to an interdicted person was dropped against Van Fedder of 701 Main st., a barber shop operator. Fedder pled not guilty to the charge last week. Complaint was signed by Joe Butler, but he is no longer in the local area.

Trial dates yet to be set are in the cases of George Kerr, who is charged with pointing a loaded gun in a Main street tavern. Also the case of Pascal Mullins of Mt. View, charged with assault and battery in an incident involving his wife. The complaint was signed by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Edith Pearson. Trial date has been postponed by the district attorney until Mrs. Mullins and her seven-year-old son return from a California trip. Mullins has pled not guilty in the case. Another count of carrying a concealed weapon was dropped.

The second trial of George Foster, this time charged with leaving the scene of an accident, has not yet been set. First trial on charge of driving under the influence of alcohol ended in a conviction and sentence of $250 and costs with 60 days in jail. The jail term was suspended.

LYNX HOLLOW

Mrs. Orville Lamb, Reporter. Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Eddings in the loss of their infant twin sons March 10. The Eddings, now of Blackbutte Route, Cottage Grove, formerly resided here.

Mrs. Dean Arney is home from the Cottage Grove hospital where she was a pneumonia patient.

Mr. and Mrs. George Quackenbush and four children and Mr. and Mrs. S. Heile and five children, all of Veneta, visited Sunday afternoon with the Orville Lamb family.

Quackenbush and Heile will set up a portable sawmill on the property near Veneta and will saw all timber that will make a 6x6 twelve feet in length.

Spring winds have been severe of late, blowing over lots of timber. Parts of this vicinity have been so heavily logged that the wind gets a straight sweep at the timber left standing.

One tree with plenty of room elsewhere to fall, chose to fall square on a metal post on Elmer Kinery's property and drove it in the ground.

With the coming of spring logging is well underway with all but two places being logged at present in Turkey Run, and a number in Lynx Hollow.

Mrs. Prichard's pupils Friday had a sale of popcorn balls to raise funds for the Red Cross. Awhile back Mrs. Summer's pupils had a sale of candy for the same purpose.

Oregon Profs. Talk

A small amount of radioactive material was put in a part of the oil which was registered by the counter placed on top of the line. The radioactive material did not hurt the oil, he said.

He also told of its use in experiments for cures for goiter and cancer.

Dr. Ebbighausen told of the development of nuclear physics and the theory of radioactivity that dated back to 1895. He also told of exploding atoms to get at the laws of nuclear physics.

"Nuclear radiation is the explosion of atoms," he said the explosion is caused by out of balance atoms, or the addition or subtraction of the element of neutrons from the nucleus (center of the atom).

"Most atoms around us are stable, which is a good thing," he said. He also explained that there are about 100 million atoms in one half inch of space, with still plenty of room left.

Music Language. Prof. Hopkins, speaking last, told the development of music and "the literature and language of music."

He spoke of the "tone language" and use of natural chords in the development of a tune.

He also illustrated that "finger exercises and scales" are not always dull. "Joy to the World" a great Christmas carol, he showed was the "scale come to life."

Important thing as they used to be," he said.

Prof. Hopkins concluded his lecture by playing a rumba, "Black Diamonds," which he composed.

Guests. Present to hear the talks were Messrs. and Mesdames Cecil Caldwell, H. W. Lombard, G. E. Finerty, J. F. Finneran, Carlton Woodard, Tom Gallo; Dr. and Mrs. David Morris, Mrs. Sophia Stilling, William A. Stilling, Mrs. Harold Wolfard, Mrs. W. A. Hemenway, Mrs. Loungis Spencer, Mrs. John VanNortwick, Ray Albee and Don V. Clark.
