COTTAGE GROVE, LANE COUNTY, OREGON THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1952

NUMBER 38

Portent of the times: wrecking of old Texaco station at 5th and Washington, once very busy when 5th street was the main highway, now torn down because of heavy traffic having shifted to Highway 99. The station is shown being wrecked by a 1500 pound ball swung on a crane by T. W. Busdrik. When company did not renew lease it had to have three buildings and all pavement removed. Lease read that the property had to be put back in same condition as it was before the station was built. Property belongs to Roy Short, probably will be leased for another business enterprise. J. S. Crepeau was contractor for the wrecking job.

Lane Co. Included In 33 TV Stations Proposed in State

Washington—Lane county can look forward to its own television on five stations, which may be built under a plan of the Federal Communications Commission, in Eugene and Springfield.

The FCC plan, which has just been adopted calls for 33 new stations in Oregon. Most of them will operate in the Ultra-High Frequency range, which is an untapped section of the radio spectrum. Use of this UHF band and expansion of the present Very High Frequency service should eventually permit nearly 2,000 new television stations in every section of the nation. The 108 television stations now operating in the United States are in the VHF range.

20,000 Sets in Lane

When new stations are built, home television receivers will follow quickly, judging from the experience of present television areas. Based on the national pattern, Oregon can anticipate more than 250,000 sets a year or two after the new stations begin operation, with more than 20,000 sets in Lane County alone.

Under the FCC plan, Oregon cities and towns which may obtain new stations are: Albany, Ashland, Astoria, Baker, Bend, Burns, Corvallis, Eugene, Grants Pass, Klamath Falls, La Grande, Lebanon, McMinnville, Medford, North Bend, Pendleton, Portland, Roseburg, Salem, Springfield and The Dalles.

Better Fire Guard Required by BLM in Timber Areas

Because government timber and forest areas administered by the Bureau of Land Management suffered heavily in the fires on logging areas in 1951, and because of the continually mounting cost of fire fighting, the BLM has taken action to require better fire prevention safeguards on O & C and public domain timber sale areas in the Pacific Northwest.

Detailed stipulations covering 17 fire prevention requirements have been issued to district foresters to be applied to the approximately 300 annual BLM timber sales in which an average of between 450 and 500 million board feet of timber is sold each year. The instructions direct that each timber sale area be studied and that only the stipulations needed be applied to the individual sale, but that the required safeguards be included in the sale contract and enforced.

OREGON RANKS FOURTH IN TEACHER RATING

Oregon College of Education, Monmouth—Oregon ranked fourth in number of elementary school teachers prepared, per 100,000 population in 1950, a research study made public recently indicates.

The figures, compiled by R. E. Lieullen, Registrar, Oregon College of Education, include the 20 states requiring a minimum of three to four years of college preparation for elementary teachers. The Beaver State produced 35.7 teachers per 100,000 population, compared with a midpoint figure of 14.8 for all 20 states.

Only Utah, Alabama, and Arizona rank higher than Oregon.

Spring Cleaning Good Defense Act

Spring housecleaning also is a good civil defense measure, according to Robert Sandstrom, an assistant to the state CD director. "Firesafe housekeeping is one of the many common sense precautions for everyone, whether they live in Portland, or on a wheat ranch in eastern Oregon, or in a small community in the Willamette Valley", he said. On a recent broadcast in the current series of "Survival," Sandstrom and George Emigh, training and education officer, summed-up advice for the individual citizen in regard to natural or war-caused disasters:

1. Keep homes clean. A clean building seldom burns. Learn the basic rudiments of fire fighting.

2. Following large-scale emergencies, remain at home and stay off the roads. Highways will be used for getting emergency vehicles to stricken areas.

3. Do not be an amateur FBI agent, but if you see any instances of subversive action, report them to the nearest police station or sheriff's office.

Disregard Rumors

4. Following a disaster, wait for official bulletins on the radio and in the newspapers. Disregard rumors heard on street corners.

5. Stay off the telephone during an emergency. It is the backbone of the communications system, and will be needed for relief operations.

6. Take a first aid course from Red Cross. Have first aid kit in home.

7. Set aside three to five day's food supply for emergency use only.

8. Following an air raid alert, those in metropolitan areas should shut off household appliances, such as un-plugging irons and turning off stove burners, just as if they are leaving for the day. Do not turn off main switches.

9. In your reading, put civil defense on your "best seller" list. In your actions, put civil defense somewhere on the schedule. Preparedness on the home front will succeed or fail according to the public's will.

Vets Bonus Bonds Sold Bank Group

Oregon's $46,000,000 in bonus bonds have been sold at an effective interest rate of 1.71 percent, and the Department of Veterans' Affairs announced that bonus payments will start July 1.

The winning bond bid of three submitted was that of a syndicate headed by National City Bank of New York, Harris Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, and First National Bank of Portland. The bids were opened April 23 in the office of Veterans' Affairs Director William F. Gaarenstroom, Salem.

20-Year Bonds

The total cost in interest will amount to $9,239,507. The bonds will be retired over a period of 20 years, starting with Oct. 1, 1953. They will be retired at the rate of $2,000,000 yearly from 1953 through 1966, and $3,000,000 annually from 1966 through 1972. It will take about two months to print the bonds and inspect, seal, sign and deliver them to the successful bidder and receive the bonus funds. As soon as the veterans' department gets the money, bonus checks will go in the mail.

All applicants whose claims have been approved by June 30 will receive their payments in July. To date, more than 50,000 claims have been approved for an average payment of nearly $420.

Filing Slow

The speed with which future claims are paid depends entirely on how fast bonus applications come in. Gaarenstroom said, Veterans currently are filing at a rate "far too low" to maintain efficient operations in the bonus processing division, he warned.

State treasury officials said Wednesday's winning bid was "extremely favorable" and saved taxpayers about $4,800,000 over the probable cost had the bonds been sold to state agencies, as was proposed last winter.

Waiting for something to break is the thing that keeps many people broke.
