MEMORY LANE

The Zinc Tub

Remember how for years the old zinc tub not only took care of the family laundry each week but Saturday night baths as well? Later, father installed a new fangled tin tub, just for bathing. Then, it too was replaced. This time by a shiny white porcelain tub. Remember?

Reflections.

"FREEDOM"

In a gallery at Florence, Michelangelo left a sculptured group less than half finished, called "Freedom." The four figures are emerging from a block of marble, their faces are suffused with happiness. The mother is holding her baby high above her head while the father is straining to pull an older child out of the rock's bondage. The theme is unmistakable—a man works for his freedom.

July 4th is a birthday of our freedom. Celebrate it with boundless love and patriotism in our hearts as we emerge from the hard rock of bondage. We know we can be crushed by lethargy, we also know that we can rise, rise, to face the eternal sun, see it bathe a Nation that will not accept less than perfection. America is ours to defend. It is ours to build, to make the most glorious land on earth, with rock-ribbed freedom for all.
