Pluma Hanna, age 70, who lived in and around Cottage Grove for a number of years, recently died at a Salem hospital. Her funeral was held at the Catholic church in Oregon City, June 24. He had been ill only a very short time as she had been nursing her invalid daughter Mildred, Mrs. Lud Hagen for a long period of time. Mrs. Hagen is much improved and is able to be up. Another daughter Buelah also formerly of this vicinity came from El Paso, Tex., for the funeral. She is Mrs. Elwood Davis. They have a son in the Marines who came also and a young grandson. Those from Sagi-naw and Cottage Grove who survive are a sister, Ida Jackson, two brothers, Jess and Hez Tucker, a nephew Claude Lawson and Mrs. Cora Olson. Aside from the house guests friends come from Springfield, Eugene and Cottage Grove. The rain gauge evidently thought it was a joke to mention a mere 2 7/10 in. of rain in June last week so increased the amount to 5 in. before this Monday morning rolled around. However, this day is sunny and looks much more promising for the hay weather so badly needed. Much of the early hay is spoiled in windrow, shock or in the bale. Later hay is getting very ripe in spite of the rain of last week. Many early cherries and some of the later ones are badly cracked but many may be utilized by pitting them.

- 1—Newspaper reading is a universal habit. Newspaper advertising, therefore, reaches virtually all who read and buy.
- 2—Newspaper advertisements can always be seen by the reader.
- 3—The newspaper advertisement, as part of the complete paper, goes into the home as a welcome guest.
- 4—The newspaper advertisement can have as much news value and reader interest as the news items. The reader's attention can be held.
- 5—The amount of text used in newspaper advertisements is dependent only upon the size of the space. Text is unrestricted.
- 6—Display advertisements may be illustrated with pictures of the merchant's products.
- 7—Newspaper advertising is flexible. It may be used in whatever quantity desired according to sales, distribution or peculiar market conditions.
- 8—Newspaper advertising is quickly controlled. It may be started and stopped within a few hours' time. This gives the consumer the latest news of late developments that may help him save money and obtain better service.
- 9—Newspaper advertising may be adjusted to different conditions. Copy, appeals and layouts may be changed to meet changes in the local marketing situation, price and weather.
- 10—Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers and dealers to state where their products may be bought. This saves time, trouble and energy for the consumer.
- 11—Newspaper advertising is inexpensive. Merchants have learned that it covers more families for less money than any other form of advertising. This makes the newspaper an ideal medium for those advertisers whose products are used frequently.
- 12—Newspaper advertising results may be checked.
- 13—Newspaper circulation is known and is comparatively unaffected by daily change.
- 14—Nearly all of a newspaper's circulation is concentrated in its own market.
- 15—Newspaper advertising reduces selling costs because it entails no waste in circulation.
- 16—Newspaper advertising identifies a particular store with certain kinds of merchandise of known quality.
- 17—Newspaper advertising retains old customers and attracts new customers.
- 18—Newspaper advertising increases sales and speeds merchandise turnover.
- 19—Newspaper advertising reduces overhead expense by spreading it over an increased volume of business.
- 20—Newspaper advertising stabilizes prices and sales methods.
