REFLECTIONS

JIMMY USED HIS HEAD

Seven year old Jimmy Lucas came from Canada to Baltimore to visit a cousin, went to a theatre, when he came out he was confused, walked in the wrong direction, couldn't find the theatre nor his cousin's house. Did he wait? Become panic stricken? Not Jimmy.

He found a Policeman and said, "Please take me to a T. V. Station."

The Officer laughed. "Want to be a Star?"

"No, I'm lost," Jimmy informed him.

"Stay here," the Policeman advised. "Your parents are looking for you."

"No they're not, they're looking at T. V. right now," Jimmy insisted.

The Officer's laugh faded. His eyes brightened. "You're a bright lad," he said. "Jump in." Jimmy was whisked to a T. V. Station. Cameras were trained on him while being interviewed. Two minutes later the telephone rang; Jimmy talked to his mother. Fifteen minutes later he was home telling about T. V. and that wonderful cop.
