George Stephen to Leave Area

City Council members are not alone in their regret that George Stephen has tendered his resignation as city treasurer. Many, many citizens in this area have grown to know and love the gentle Scotsman who first came to south Lane county some twenty-five years ago. Stephen said, in his letter to the Council that he was resigning because he was leaving Cottage Grove in the very near future. He added that "it has been a pleasure to serve the city as treasurer and the privilege of doing so is appreciated."

It is our thought that it has been a pleasure to have George Stephen with us. We are sorry that he and his wife are leaving the community, but we wish them well and hope they return often to see how things are.

While we're at it, we extend best wishes to CG's newly-appointed treasurer, Mike Siebert. Mike has a big job to fill, but, then, Mike is a big man. (L. O.)

Like many another metropolitan daily newspaperman with hourly deadlines to meet, we used to ponder on how nice it would be to have a hometown newspaper with only one deadline a week. Comes now a colleague of the old New York Sun, Tom Headen, Editor of The Waldorf (Md.) Leaf, who, having achieved our mutual ambition, says "It's more fun than working on The Sun. Also the pressure is considerably higher. Don't think that putting out a weekly is a relaxed operation." . . . But the dream dies hard.—Carl C. Helm.

Molotov showed Russia's hand at the recent Geneva conference it is agreed. Sure did!—A hand that held on to everything Russia has taken in the past and is seeking to grab everything loose in the future.

Letters to Editor:

June 22, 1934

To the Editor:

It has come to my attention many times that one reason numerous people are not, or have not contributed to the swimming pool fund, is because of the suggested location on the high school grounds.

I would like to go on record as favoring its location when built at another place. I feel if the objection for the above stated reason is valid, then another site should be selected so they can get back of this worthwhile venture. If any are using it as an excuse not to contribute, it will also remove that excuse.

I do not wish to convey the idea that the school district is withdrawing its offer of a site but to let you know that the high school administration would go along with, and favor a location at some other suitable place.

I do hope that the community will get behind the venture and provide the area with one of its greatest youth needs.

Sincerely,
Virgil G. Kingsley
Superintendent

WHAT INDUSTRY CAN MEAN TO A COMMUNITY

New Factory Adds Much to an Area

A new factory employing 150 people in an Oregon city would generate enough business in the community to support between 1,000 and 1,200 persons.

This was revealed today in a study of the Northwest Research Council of the National Association of Manufacturers. The study shows what is added to the economy of a community by a single factory.

New residents earning their living as a result of the factory would need 300 homes, and ordinarily would want about 320 automobiles, the report stated. Families gaining a livelihood because of the factory will have children enough for an 18-room school, it continued.

These additional people would support 33 stores and 23 professional people, it is estimated. They will pay $53,000 to the local transportation facilities to transport the goods produced by the factory. This factory will buy the produce of 6,000 acres, involving the farmers about the community and giving them a market for their produce. It will lay down a revolving payroll of over $200,000 and establish a $2,500,000 foundation for taxes, the NAM said.

"However," the NAM asserts, "the building of new factories requires the investment of capital by individuals and businesses. If the Northwest is to keep abreast of its rapidly-expanding population, a tax revision must be brought about to leave the people in the Northwest enough money for this investment."

The construction of this one factory of 150 employees would cost approximately $1,800,000, the NAM stated.

The NAM estimates that there will be an increase of some 16,600 business firms between 1950 and 1960 in Oregon from 48,600 to 65,200.

Horace Wolfard, 416 South Tenth, entered Sacred Heart hospital Monday to undergo further surgery. Wolfard received a back injury while working in the woods about seven months ago. He had a previous operation four months ago, but the extent of the injury was such that further surgery was required.

Pioneer Merchant

raised berries on Silk Creek and had the largest berry farm in this vicinity. Later he was well known for his culture of the Graft Lily, being first to grow them in Lane county, and for many years, he was active in bulb growers associations throughout the state. He also developed the Pride of Oregon lily, and was the first farmer to irrigate in this area.

BPWers to "Meet Me in St. Louis"

Mrs. Lenora Pyburn, Cottage Grove, member of the local Business and Professional Women's club will leave Portland Thursday morning to attend the national BPW convention in St. Louis.

An alternate delegate from Oregon to the convention, Mrs. Pyburn learned last week that she had been selected to be general chairman for the Oregon reception for national officers, state presidents and federation members at the convention. Dates for the meet are June 26-27-28.

BPW members from throughout the Pacific northwest will board a special car in Portland for the convention. They will rendezvous with delegates from throughout the west at Ogden, Utah, and from there will have a train of their own.

Mrs. Pyburn is taking with her nearly 400 miniature handmade, wooden railroad boxcars which will be traded to other BPW convention-goers in return for convention items from other states. The boxcars were handmade by several local residents. Each are loaded with miniature logs.

2 Families Need Help Immediately

Red Cross representative, Mrs. Catherine Sedergren, said Tuesday that two families in the area were desperately in need of kitchen chairs, table and any kind of a useable electric range. She said that the one family without chairs and tables were using boxes, and that the family without a stove was now using only a hot plate. There are four children in each family.

Mrs. Sedergren said she wished to thank residents in the area for helping her find a baby carriage for another family the Red Cross was helping. "The response to our request," she added, "was just wonderful, and I hope we can do something to help these other families."

D. Dickey Urges Clean Up to Rid Premises Of Rats and Mice

Donald Dickey, rodent control officer for Lane county recently urged citizens to clean their premises of trash and rubbish so that rats and mice will not be harbored. Even in stacks of lumber about the place, Mr. Dickey suggested could harbor mice and rats, if not properly stacked off the ground. Otherwise these rodents will live in the lumber piles. It's easier to keep rats and mice down with clean premises, he said.

Mr. Dickey, who comes to Cottage Grove every Thursday, can be contacted at the city hall for those who live in or near the city. He has been poisoning rats here for several years and merchants generally think the work of Mr. Dickey is very helpful and has saved the community thousands of dollars, which was formerly wasted by the rats.

Opal Whiteley

of London County, England. Bede's book has been termed "lively" and "fast-paced" by those who have had an opportunity to examine it. It may be found at the Cottage Grove Public Library, or can be purchased at Thriftwise.

Author Bede ends his colorful and spellbinding account of Miss Whiteley's adventures with: "I once hoped the author of 'The Story of Opal' might some day give us another diary telling us the whole story of the first one, but solutions will never come from her. No longer is there any mental glitter, and never again will there be. Tragedy has stilled the mind of a genius, though the body lives on for a time."

Girls State Reps Term Week "Tops"

Back in Cottage Grove after spending June 14 - 16 at Girls State at Willamette University in Salem are three girls, Jeanette Beck, Phyllis Higdon and Mabel Kief. They attended the week-long session as delegates from this area. All were unanimous in acclaiming Girls State sponsored by the American Legion, a "wonderful experience."

More than 220 girls attended the state-wide meet which featured addresses by Gov. Paul Patterson, Department Commander of the American Legion Dallas Nollsch, Department President of the American Legion Auxiliary Mrs. Forest Erickson, Salem Mayor Al Loucks and a member of the committee for Un-American Activities William Browne.

Delegate Jeanette Beck, sponsored by the Gum county Nationalist's party for state labor commissioner in the Primaries, but was defeated in the general election. She was then elected senator from the county. Jeanette said Tuesday, that she believed more girls should have the opportunity to attend the session because "I think we wouldn't be losing our freedoms and being having so many things we dislike if we have more future adults with a better understanding of government."

Miss Higdon, sponsored by BPW, American Legion Auxiliary and Eagles Auxiliary, served as a county commissioner, voting delegate to state party convention and secretary to a state representative. It was Phyllis' opinion that the week was wonderful and "allowed each of us to learn much about government and about people."

Jaycee delegate Mabel Kief served on the election board and was a Nationalist senator from Bubble City in Gum county. She stated that "my week at Girls State was the most rewarding one I have ever had. Besides learning more than I thought possible, I had lots of fun and made many new friends." Mabel added, as an afterthought, that the food was really tops.

Council Calls

sewers where these paving and sewer projects are to be done.

Despite the cost of installing the sewers it was estimated that it would cost around $4,500 at Oak Park and $2,000 on two blocks of Quincy) the council decided that they should be put in. "It would be false economy to put down a street and then break it up to install a storm sewer," remarked Mayor Crepeau.

No set policy has been followed by the city in the past on assessing drainage storm sewers to property, but, following a discussion on the matter in which City Attorney H. W. Lombard quoted a city ordinance which allowed drainage to be assessed to property, the council, in this case, decided that it should be done.

Coirer reported to the council that assessments for the regular sewer line in West Main would run 3.8c per square foot of property. For example, he said, assessment on a 60x120 foot lot would be $273.60.

Stephen Resigns

George Stephen, city treasurer since 1947, tendered his resignation before the council. In his letter to the council Stephen said: "As I will be leaving Cottage Grove in the very near future, I have thought it best to have my resignation coincide with the end of the fiscal year thus saving the cost of a mid-term audit, and allowing my successor to open the new year as of July 1st. It will be happy to show my successor, whoever he may be, the methods used in keeping the city records." Mike Siebert and Ivan Hoyer were the only names placed before the council for the post.

Excessive expense was the principal reason for the rejection of the mobile telephone unit and the new sewer cleaner. The council felt that the $200 per month rent for the telephone unit was out of reason. H. B. McMillan's request for a new sewer cleaning machine was turned down because the old machine, although out-dated, could be put into fair working condition at a fraction of the $1,200 for a new one.

Inferior Homes in CG

Councilmen went out Wednesday to investigate the validity of claims that several inferior houses were being moved into Cottage Grove and if they find the homes not suitable they will take action accordingly.

Plans to charge a $5 fee for reconnecting water meters because of delinquent water bills were considered. The matter was brought to light by H. B. McMillan who said that much time and expense was involved in reconnecting the water meters. McMillan cited an example of an out-of-town resident with a delinquent water bill who connects up his water line to that of the city as fast as McMillan's crew can disconnect it. The matter was referred to a committee.

The council also OK'd an offer by the state to pay Somers & Stacy, general contractors, for installing 70 feet of water mains and concrete sewer pipe on Madison Street, and authorized them to proceed.

The Army's first aviation school opened at College Park, Md., in 1911.

While at Pearl Harbor he headed an expedition for original surveys and field investigations for plans for developments at Palmyra and Johnston Islands.

From 1940 to 1944 Captain Powell was on active duty in the 14th Naval District where he served as Public Works Officer and Project Manager for Planning and Construction.

gust, will be set by the State Committee.

Clare Chapman of Cottage Grove and Forrest Woods of Delight Valley were named to the Polling Board, along with Ernest Schrenk, Goshen, and Jensen, McKenzie River. Jack Northam, Eugene, was named superintendent of the board.

Nominations for Supervisor of UWSCD were made by petition and included George Molitor, Cottage Grove, Raymond Bruce, Mahawk, Gordon Kerum, Eugene, W. G. Nash, Cloverdale and Wayne Endicott, McKenzie River. From the six nominees three will be elected by vote of the landowners. In addition, two supervisors will be appointed by the state committee.

Authorities Praise CG

Henry Pavlek, District Soil Conservationist, O. S. Fletcher, county agent and Robert Baum, executive secretary of the state Soil Conservation Committee, who also attended Monday's hearing, were grateful that there was such widespread interest in the project.

Fletcher gave Cottage Grove a big pat on the back for sparking the development of the SCD. Members of the local Chamber of Commerce, in particular Dr. H. A. Hagen and his Agriculture Committee, have worked hard for several years to make SCD become a reality.

SCD features such benefits as technical assistance on drainage of lands, planting of crops, rotation, which crops are most suitable to his particular land, etc. SCD works individually, not collectively, with each farmer, giving him the technical information for the application of soil conservation to the land, free of charge.

Anyone with 10 acres or more is classed as a landowner and may vote to form an SCD. After the district is formed, however, any landowner may participate in a SCD and receive its benefits.
