NW Power Supply Viewed as Good By PP & L Head

Optimism about the future of the Pacific Northwest and its power supply was expressed June 17 by Paul B. McKee, president of Pacific Power & Light, at a dinner meeting of Springfield and Cottage Grove employees at the Willamalane Memorial Building in Springfield.

The meeting was one of a series being held throughout the Pacific service area honoring the company's 2234 employees and their wives and husbands. Total service for the entire group represents 22,343 years.

"Power Outlook Favorable"

Power outlook in the next few years is very favorable, McKee pointed out, with McNary, Chief Joseph, The Dalles and other dams now under construction to bring in about 3,000,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity by 1960.

Pacific Power & Light and three of its neighbor companies have under study a group of hydroelectric projects totaling 1,181,000 kilowatts to meet power growth needs after 1960, McKee reported.

"We are also very hopeful that an additional 1,000,000 kilowatt development may soon be started at the John Day site on the Columbia River as a result of joint efforts now being made to get that project started," he added. "This same group of companies, according to McKee, also is working with the Atomic Energy Commission in an investigation of the possibility of a nuclear power plant for the production of electric energy."

Merger Strengthens

Speaking of the recent merger of Mountain States Power Company with and into Pacific Power & Light, McKee said, "It puts behind our local operating organization the pool of financial and physical resources of the two companies and will greatly strengthen their ability to keep up with the rapidly growing service requirements of 285,000 customers."

A total of $124,000,000 has been spent on new construction by the now merged companies since the end of the war. Expenditures for 1954 are estimated at $11,500,000. Service pins for the employees who have been with the company for 10 years or more were presented by D. R. McClung, executive vice president, as a feature of the dinner.

Cottage Grove employees who were awarded pins were Floyd Hilliker, Cottage Grove district manager, 20 years and Edna M. Piller, 10 years.

Oregon Accidents High During Summer Months

If you are planning a vacation during July or August, state traffic safety officials suggest you study these facts: the summer months last year brought 10,000 accidents to Oregon streets and highways. Sixty-nine people were killed and 2,747 were injured.

Heading the list of driver violations in last summer's record was following too closely. Driving on the wrong side of the road, getting an improper start from parked position and not having right of way at intersections were other frequent violations. Speed, which often gets blamed for all mishaps, was sixth on the list of driver violations.

Out-of-state vacationists met trouble in several ways: A Texan died because he failed to slow down for a curve. An Iowan met death at another curve when the car's right wheels went off the pavement and he lost control attempting to get back on the highway.

A California driver died when he cut in too soon after completing a pass, clipping the car he passed and then ricocheting off a bridge. Another Californian was killed and her daughter seriously injured when she stopped at a highway junction to read signs and was struck from the rear by a fast-moving vehicle.

"All these mishaps could have been prevented," state safety men maintain, "if drivers had exercised common sense." Failure to do so, annually results in serious crashes and sometimes turns a two-week vacation from work into a lifelong tragedy, the office concluded.

NEWS & NOTES

By Vinal Jr. and Russ

After the big fuss kicked up by the coffee shortage and resultant high prices, let's investigate the history of the little beans cultivated by our neighbors to the south.

A fourteenth century Arabian, named Kaldi, is said to be the discoverer of the coffee habit. The ancient Turks were said to have taken so strongly to coffee breaks that they neglected business matters to the extent that the Governor of Mecca banned public coffee houses as "places of corruption." Coffee made its way to England in the fifteenth century and by 1668 it was introduced on these shores.

If you are lukewarm toward our way of brewing the stuff, try methods used in other parts of the world. The French, for example, lean toward cafe au lait, an eye-lean composed of strong black coffee and scalded milk, poured half-and-half from two containers. Turkish coffee is brewed to the consistency of Mississippi River bottom mud. The Brazilians fill a demitasse with granulated sugar and pour strong coffee over it, a practice designed to end the shortage in a hurry if adopted here.

By the way, you'll never be lukewarm toward the service and quality you can expect at RANDALL & WOOLCOTT, 41 S. 6th St. Our line of building supplies is large and varied enough to meet any need. As far as prices go—see us first and make your dollars last.
