"Uncle"
I give up! For three weeks I've been trying to find out when the old steel bridge at West Main recently replaced by a new modern concrete span, was built. No one seems to know.

When I took a picture of the new bridge I thought it might be of interest to include in the caption how long the old bridge had served the Cottage Grove community.

I went over to see Les Coiner, city engineer, thinking he might know when the bridge was built, and if perchance, a picture of it had been taken. He didn't know when it was constructed and no picture was available. (Come to find we had a picture of it.) "Ask John Trunnell, he can tell you," Coiner said.

"No I can't tell you when it was built, but I know who might be able to help you. Go see Nelson Durham," Trunnell advised.

I jaunted over to see Mr. Durham, but, as usual, no luck. "Why don't you ask Armand Wynne, he's got a memory like an elephant, he can surely tell you," was the reply.

"At last I'm making headway," I thought. "Well, I think it was built around 1923, but I'm not sure. Go see Frank McFarland, he's been here longer'n me, he'll know for sure," Wynne said.

I gave McFarland a ring, but he didn't know either. He told me to call Charlie Reese. "Charlie worked on the bridge when it was built," McFarland explained. "He can tell you all you want know."

I thought sure I had it licked now. Charlie Reese came by the Sentinel a few days later and told me he thought the bridge was built around 1910, but didn't know for sure. He told me some feller by the name of Munson built the bridge and had hired him as a riveter to work on it. "Ask Mrs. Charlie Miller," Reese said, "Munson was her brother, she'll know for sure."

I've been calling Mrs. Miller for a week now and never could get in contact with her. I decided to give it up as a lost cause and went ahead and wrote the caption for the bridge picture. All this effort for two lousy lines in the paper, and I still didn't find out.

I don't think I contacted all the old timers in Cottage Grove, so if there are any who know for sure, without sending me to see someone else, I would appreciate knowing how old the old steel bridge was for my own personal information, if nothing else.

Just What We'd Said Before

Roger Babson, economics and financial expert is quoted by the Oregon Voter as saying there is a new trend to establish supershopping centers, perhaps starting as a cluster of four or five different stores, 10 or 12 miles from a city. The new fad is to start the stores as non-competitive. The various stores will unite to buy cooperatively plenty of land to build the stores on and provide plenty of parking space for the customers in an area along the highway where land is relatively cheap. The super centers may not come to Oregon for awhile on account of the size of population, but it is no fad to say that more and more stores are locating where parking space is available at a reasonable price.

But here is the important part of Mr. Babson's conclusion: "The expert views parking facilities and congested traffic as the big factor tending toward dispersal of merchandising establishments. Cities which do not now buy or condemn property needed for parking are making a big mistake." One serious result will be that owners of business real estate will suffer. Babson believes the trend he envisions is so certain to eventuate that he forecasts a big turnover in city property, patently at something approaching a bargain or at least lower prices.

Cottage Grove could profit, if some of the city fathers would realize we have a parking problem. Others also say we have no parking problem, but if you don't believe it, just try to find a parking place within a block of the Sentinel. Here you will find some of the cars, whose owners say we have no parking problem.

The theory of Mr. Babson agrees with our thinking exactly. Our problem here is a smaller one of course. It's just what we have been warning against for the past ten years.

We Missed Boat on Centennial Celebration

For the past two or three years there has been talk of staging a centennial celebration for the Cottage Grove community, but apparently the time has passed. G. W. McFarland, one of the old timers says the 100th anniversary of Cottage Grove should have been in 1953.

What really started Cottage Grove on its growth was the Bohemia mines and no celebration would have been complete without reviving the "Bohemia Days." Old timers will tell you when the mines were established, Cottage Grove was really a wild and woolly town in the old days when the saloons outnumbered by far any other line of established business. Judge Harris, a pioneer attorney now of Eugene, recalls the horse and buggy days when he was called to Cottage Grove quite frequently, mostly on disturbances which grew out of too much imbibing. Then it was a good day's drive from Eugene to the Grove.

But You Only Come Out Once a Week!

It has been said the average fellow can pose as an expert in three fields: 1— as a football coach for his home town team. 2— as an expert in raising the other fellow's kids. 3— as an expert in publishing any newspaper. Despite the fact that weekly newspapers and magazines have been published practically since the invention of printing, you can hear all sorts of derogatory remarks against the effectiveness of the weekly publications as mediums of communications as well as mediums of advertising.

As for instance, we have heard the Sentinel is no good as an advertising medium because we come out only once per week. Knowing the place of the weekly newspaper in the communication field, the fact that a newspaper is limited to a once a week publication is about as silly an argument as we have ever heard. There is nothing as old as yesterday's daily, but a weekly publication remains in the average home until the next issue is out. Even in the daily field, most advertisers insert only one or two ads per week and in the non-daily field the average advertiser does well to make the deadline once per week.

Most businesses are geared to the economics of the community, they serve, they have to exist. Business failures are due in a large measure to the fact that the economics of the community is ignored.

Letter From Washington Congressional Investigation Better Than British System

By Harris Ellsworth, Member of Congress
Oregon's Fourth Congressional District

As noted in my previous weekly letter, I took a quick trip to England over the 4th of July weekend and spent the remainder of that week there—and in Western Germany. The purpose of the trip was to find out at first hand from officials of the British Government just how they—particularly Parliament—go about investigating irregularities, disloyalty or other "scandals," as they call such things, in their government. There is a resolution pending before the rules committee which would amend the rules of the House to set up certain additional standards of procedure for committees when they conduct investigations. I wanted to find out if British experience could contribute any suggestions for improving that resolution.

I knew, of course, that there is really not much similarity between the British parliamentary system and our own. We have, however, two basic things in common. Both systems are truly representative governments and both countries have internal problems and troubles of about the same kind. Obviously we could borrow nothing much in the way of identical procedure but it seemed likely that there might be a common ground of basic thinking on the subject.

After talking at some length with highly placed officials in the legislative, judicial and executive branches of the British Government, including, by the way, a half hour with former Prime Minister Clement Attlee, I came away with the conclusion that even with whatever faults it may have, our way of conducting inquiries through congressional committees is better adapted to the needs of our vast country. Our problem, then, is to reduce the faults and dangers of our procedure to an absolute minimum, which, in essence, is the purpose of the resolution mentioned above.

Our government under the constitution is divided into three separate and independent branches—the executive, judicial and legislative. In Britain the three are intermingled. Cabinet members must be members of Parliament and there is a close relationship between Parliament—particularly the House of Lords, and the judiciary.

Inquiries by Parliament into the conduct of the various executive agencies (ministries) can be conducted daily in the House of Commons during the question period. The ministers being members of the House are present to answer questions. Their Parliament has nothing which could be reasonably compared with the committee system of our Congress. From time to time they have resorted to the device of select committees to investigate specific matters but it seems they have experienced some difficulties and few satisfactory results from such efforts. In an effort to remedy the troubles thus developed Parliament passed the "Tribunals of Inquiry Act of 1921." From our point of view it would seem that this law really increases the troubles because the "tribunals" created as the result of the Act are clothed with the authority of a court but are not required to use judicial procedures. Evidently the British meet the situation by seldom resorting to the select committee method of conducting investigations.

In general, the British seem to feel that their daily question hour in the House of Commons just about meets whatever need they have for investigations. The remainder of the problem is not actually solved. One well informed member of the House of Lords made this comment: "The truth is that any legislature is driven from time to time to institute enquiries either by itself or by others which at least potentially have the power to inflict great injustice on individuals." He offered the further observation that in Britain safeguards are maintained which reduce that hazard to a minimum. A discussion of the principles upon which the safeguards are based revealed a close parallel to the provisions of the Scott resolution.

Disston Folk Vacation; School Receiving Repairs

By Mrs. J. G. Barber
Phone 68667

DISSTON—There was quite a crowd at the Mothers' club picnic July 14.

The young folks and some of the ladies enjoyed swimming.

We would like to extend belated congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hass, who were married recently. Mrs. Hass was formerly Darlene Grov of Rat Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carr, Sr. and Larry and Jerry Carr spent a few days last week fishing in eastern Oregon. They left again Monday for the coast to try their luck. Mrs. Carr's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Prowditt of Salem, went to the coast with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Carr, Larry, Jerry and Claudia attended a family reunion at Philomath July 18.

Revival Meetings
Revival meetings were held last week starting Tuesday and every night after that, at the little church at the upper end of town, by Mr. Brown, who is here from California.

Boyd Chittester is back home after spending a couple of weeks at Portland working on the boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McNabb, children Stevie and Judy, visited at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy McNabb, at Kelso, Wash.

Carmen Damedwood came home July 18 from the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland, where surgery was performed on an eye.

Visiting the Hogate family Sunday were Mrs. Hogate's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Anderson and their family, of Agenda, Kans. The Hogates were hosts to quite a crowd at dinner including Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Braswell, son Roger, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Layng and their daughter, Walda, all of Cottage Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Middleton went to Lowell Saturday morning to visit her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sneddon. The same day another sister from Coos Bay, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Shultz, stopped at the Middletons for a visit on their way to Portland. Their son, J. W. Middleton Jr., his wife and their children Nancy, Terry and Dennis, came from Coos Bay for a visit over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hass are back after visiting with her father, Mr. and Mrs. James Hunt, for a couple of weeks at Tacoma, Wash.

School Construction Started
Construction has been started on the alterations of the school house. The J. S. Crepeau Company of Cottage Grove is doing the work.

Mrs. Edna Dockery returned home from the hospital Monday after going into surgery Thursday.

Mrs. Esther Miller of Springfield visited her son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. George Dewitt Sunday. Also Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rose of Springfield visited the Dewitts Sunday.

Lee Jones has gone to California to look for work. Several other men are working or trying to locate work in other localities due to the strike in the local area. Approximately 15 members of the Eugene Motorcycle club spent Saturday night at Rujada park and motored to Fairview Lookout Sunday.

Stephens to Open

dale, Calif., and Mrs. Stephens worked in a Wichita, Kans., home before coming to Cottage Grove in 1944. Mrs. Stephens has also had practical nursing experience. Mrs. Lawrence (Etta) Maguire will be the registered nurse for the home. Mrs. Stephens says plenty of help will be employed, and the food will be good. Up to date, the home has one patient, but the Stephens expect to fill the home to capacity soon.

later casing dirt to a depth of one and one half inches is added. The humidity in the building has to be kept very high. This he does by wetting down the dirt floor below the built up beds, with water daily.

The Cultured Mushrooms are at their highest market value before the gills break away from the stem, when they are in the button stage. They may also be used at many later stages. They are a delicate pink underneath when they first open. This later turns to brown.

The MacKenzie are already beginning to handle snail orders of mixed sizes at $1 per pound, cleaned and trimmed. They are their best customers however, as the whole family enjoys them.

year. The previous year they beat Eugene in the last game, making it three in a row over the Axiemen, a feat never equaled before or since. Also in 1949 Cottage Grove took both the district and Willamette Valley track meets, a first time for both in CG's history. Save the 1945 football team, Bob Dusenberry coached all these teams.

One very interesting part of McReynolds' school directorship was the fact that he had gone to high school at Cottage Grove and had Miss Myrtle Kem and F. L. (Pop) Grannis as two of his teachers. Both were still on the staff when McReynolds was elected to the board.

McReynolds stated that he enjoyed his work as a school board director, particularly because the people of Cottage Grove were very cooperative and not once turned down any of the school board requests, such as those for the new football field, the new addition, etc.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Q. My family often indulges in a bed time snack, but they leave empty milk glasses and sticky jam knives in the kitchen. In the morning washing these items is quite a chore. Do you know of some way to clean cloudy glasses and goopy knives?

A. Yes I do. If you soak glasses and other utensils which have been standing for a long time in a baking soda solution—3 tablespoons soda to one quart warm water—then wash in lukewarm suds, you'll find milk rings quickly vanish, stuck on bits of jelly routed.

Lorane 4-H Girls, Boy Scouts Attend Camps for Week

By Mrs. R. G. Conner
Phone 140M

LORANE—Mrs. R. G. Conner, Sue and Ricki went to 4-H Camp Lane on the Siuslaw Saturday to bring the Lorane 4-H girls home who had spent the week there camping. Patty Jacobson, Hazel Williamson, Mary Ann Barker and Judy Conner attended from Lorane.

On Sunday the boys from Lorane went to Camp Lane for a week. Gary Mitchell is serving as a counselor and boys attending are Robert Conner, Ned Pasco, Robert and Douglas Burns, and David and Bruce Wyman.

Purdy's Ranch furnished the stock for the Dayton Pioneer Buckeroo last weekend. It requires almost a week to take the stock to the rodeo site, then bring it home again after the rodeo, so most of the family was kept busy transferring it.

Mrs. W. H. Mitchell and sons, Billy and Boyd, are visiting her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Cooper at Newport. They went over last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dile have had a phone installed this week. Their number is 148M. Mrs. Verne Armitage and children, Trena and Albert, spent last week in Merced, Calif., visiting Mrs. Armitage's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stroup. After the cool weather Oregon has been having, they almost baked in the more than 100 degree weather at Merced.

Lorane Church of Christ held its annual picnic at the Wilson Recreation area Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Gates and children have returned from a vacation trip to the middle west. They visited relatives in Iowa, Minnesota and other midwestern states. They drove home in a new car and brought his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Gates Sr., home for a week's visit. They have been showing them points of interest in Oregon this week. The elder Gates left for Minnesota Tuesday.

Dennis Gates is spending the week at Boy Scout Camp at Camp Tsitloos on the Oregon coast.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walton and baby of Oakridge spent the weekend at the Lynn Wyman home. On Sunday they spent the day at the coast after dropping David and Bruce Wyman and Robert Conner off at Camp Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ourada, who have spent the past week at the Lynn Wyman home while they were house hunting, have found an apartment in Cottage Grove and moved Tuesday.

Several children from Lorane are taking swimming lessons at Drain.

Fire, believed to have started from an overheated kitchen stove, destroyed the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Woolery and their six children Thursday afternoon.

The house, owned by the Schneider Lumber Company, was located one-half mile west of Lorane on River Road. Mrs. Ella Day was not sure whether or not the house was insured, but the contents were not and were a total loss. Mrs. Woolery was preparing dinner and while waiting for the children to come in, they decided to go to the creek to get wash water so she could wash out a few baby clothes. She started to leave the six month old baby in bed, but she was a little "fussy," so Mrs. Woolery picked her up and took her along. When they returned, the house was a mass of flames and nothing was saved, but all the children were safe outside.

Dear Editor,

In regards to the letter appearing in this column last week about the "comings and goings" of Gowdville residents appearing under the Silk Creek items, I would like to state that when I started writing news for the Sentinel early in January, I was authorized by from all of the Silk Creek voting precinct which includes the community of Gowdville.

I have had very few items from the Gowdville community and those I have had were given to me willingly.

In writing my news items I have tried to distinguish between Gowdville and Silk Creek residents but if at some time I have failed to do so I am very sorry.

I am sure there are many people in the Gowdville community who like to be represented in our local newspaper and as there is no correspondent in that area I will be glad to take any items they may have. Telephone 1176J3. I wish to take this opportunity to thank all of the people in my news area who have been so nice about giving me their news items. It is very much appreciated.

MRS. DALE MCCOY
(Silk Creek Correspondent)

Dear Readers of the Sentinel,
On behalf of our Silk Creek Reporter, we would like to say, we are proud of our Community, we are proud of our Reporter and think she's doing a wonderful job of both securing and writing up the news. If you question her authority to report, check with the Sentinel office, she works for them. A letter such as was published in last week's Sentinel could be one reason why good reporters are hard to keep.

Respectfully,

To The Editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel

Dear Sir,
Due to an error on the part of Ye Reporter, Miss Belle Burkholder, it was stated that Armond Wynne was elected vice president of the Pioneer Old Schoolmates Association. Joe Landess was the one who was selected to fill this office. The Association will hold its annual picnic in the Cottage Grove City Park, August 7th, with potluck dinner at noon, and a program. We include all students from the year 1880, who attended the Latham school, the first schoolhouse, up to the year 1900 in the Cottage Grove Schools. You are eligible to join with us if a student in those years. Don't forget to come and renew acquaintance with your old school mates.

Miss Belle Burkholder,
In charge of publicity.

EAGL'S FLOAT

For weeks preceding the Cottage Grove Rodeo, you carried advertising such as "support the rodeo," "attend the rodeo," "see the parade" and numerous other ways to get the attention of the public for the rodeo.

This year the Aerie and Auxiliary of the F.O.E. decided to support the rodeo and enter a float in the parade.

As it turned out, it was the only REAL float in the parade, and practically the only entry entered that was not trying to sell the public something or other.

But did we get any recognition in your newspaper, either by mentioning it, or by printing a photograph of it? Absolutely not!

A number of people spent a lot of time making our float, and as the newspaper representing Cottage Grove, we feel you certainly let us down with a thud.

It isn't surprising to us that more of our local organizations do not take the time and effort to make floats to enter in the parade, so it will be something other than a commercial display.

Thanking you for reading this and letting you know how we feel.

Sincerely Yours,
Ladies Auxiliary of F.O.E. No. 2091, Alameda C. Downs, Secy. Rt. 1, Box 274, Cottage Grove, Ore.

Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage;
Minds innocent and quiet take
That for an hermitage;
If I have freedom in my love,
And in my soul am free,
Angels alone, that soar above,
Enjoy such liberty.
