Reflections . . .

Camp Fire Girls
Proudly we hail Camp Fire Girls. Camp Fire Girls, as a group, has many commendable points. Their theme for 1954 was "Let's Be Different, Together." In four words we have the secret of their organization: Unity. They are conscious of their sex as they strive for all the ideals of womanhood, not as a shrinking sisterhood nor a group of weeping clinging vines. They have as their goal the highest type of womanhood as exemplified throughout all of history, Martha Washington handed her husband, George, the ideals for which he fought. A woman gave us our flag; caveat emptor was changed, by women, to "Customer satisfaction"; women build our churches and have given us our public schools. Women have and will continue to build America. "Let Freedom Ring," the objective for 1955, reaches a pinnacle of patriotic emotion. They need it, so do we. We hope they point the way.
