Reflections . . .

It Takes But One

The first World War was precipitated by the murder of ONE MAN. A bad boy can infect a whole crowd of good boys; a dinky, ill-kept house can ruin a neighborhood; one leader can inspire an entire community.

It's spring. A brightly decorated house can change the aspect of an area. A beautiful yard along a street is a jewel on velvet. It takes but one person to set a chain reaction in a block; be that one person. Take the initiative, go to a paint store, choose colors that are bright and cheerful and make your home a beauty spot.

Our nurseries have blooming plants and a willingness to help; ask them for advice. Chose plants that will set your yard apart, a place of charm to be admired by yourself and those who pass.

Be a leader. Beautify your surroundings. Others will follow you. It takes but one—that one.

Supper, Picture Sponsored Sat. SDA Home, School

The Home and School of the Seventh-day Adventist Church sponsored a supper and picture Saturday night at the old Walker high school building. Proceeds of the supper were to go for finishing the second room at the school building.

The picture was "From Forest to You," telling of the largest unfinished furniture mill in the world and its former owner, Clyde Harris, who has just recently donated this large business complete to the Seventh-day Adventist Church. The picture told of his belief in God and how he had seen so many young people give their lives in mission service and he and his wife felt they wanted to help in a special way while they were still alive and could see the good the proceeds of this large business could do in the world-wide program.

At intermission time the Pathfinder club sold candy and popcorn. The club is raising funds for its Pathfinder uniforms.
