MORE PRODUCTS—BETTER LIVING

History has shown that the American people have attained the highest standard of living in the world.

The competitive American system, based on freedom for the individual, has encouraged our people to develop the use of new and better raw materials and to improve buildings, equipment and tools.

As a result, we now produce three to four times more per hour than we did in 1850, while enjoying nearly twice as much leisure time.

CHARM TIP of the WEEK!

by Caroline Honetti

A simple way to remember who to present to whom is to realize social introductions originated in court society. The phrase, "May I present," is asking to introduce someone to the person you are addressing. Always speak the name of the honored person who receives the distinction of being asked for the presentation first.

You are invited to write directly to Caroline Honetti—6607 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood 28, California. Please include self-addressed and stamped envelope for analysis and suggestions which will be sent by return mail.
