Rich Harvest Is Reaped by Oreg. Loggers

SALEM, OREGON, (Special)—Oregon loggers harvested 8,860,735,000 board feet of logs in 1954 to lead all states in timber production, State Forester George Spaur announced today. It was the second largest volume of timber ever cut in Oregon. The highest all-time mark was established in 1952 when 9.8 billion board feet of timber was reported.
Spaur said it was the 17th consecutive year that Oregon has maintained national leadership in the harvest of timber. The 1954 figure exceeded the 1953 output by 273,000,000 board feet.
The timber was removed from 1,167,380 acres of forestlands. Logging and salvage operations were conducted on 717,000 acres and 449,000 acres were cut for the first time.
Outstanding Progress
More intensive manufacturing processes, expanded production of plywood, pulp and new uses for wood, combined with steady markets, were cited as reasons for the increased salvage of materials left in the woods by earlier operations. The forest industries have made outstanding progress in recovering and utilizing left-over wood on previously cutover lands, the state forester reported. The private tree farm program played a major role in reclaiming great volumes of usable wood as good forest practices were placed

In operation on the permanent timber growing tracts.
State Forester Spaur said the harvesting and processing of wood is Oregon's top ranking industry with an annual income of approximately $1 billion dollars. More than 168,000 loggers, millworkers, machinists, truckers and other skilled persons were employed to produce the forest products.
Douglas Co. Leads
Douglas county topped the production of logs with a harvest of 1,598,258,000 board feet, log scale. Lane county was ranked second with a cut of 1,257,565,000 board feet. Other counties in order of production:
(3) Jackson 669,068,000 board feet.
(4) Coos 603,699,000 board feet.
(5) Linn 539,117,000 board feet.
(6) Lincoln 404,348,000 board feet.
(7) Curry 395,254,000 board feet.
(8) Tillamook 389,907,000 board feet.
(9) Clackamas 376,177,000 board feet.
(10) Josephine 282,961,500 board feet.
Grant county led production in eastern Oregon for the 5th consecutive year with a cut of 244,560,000 board feet, mostly western pine. Klamath cut 125,636,000 board feet. Total cut for the pine regions of Oregon was 1,371,879,000 board feet.
A total of 1,720,400,000 board feet was harvested from federal forest service lands and 109,389,000 from the Indian Service. In the Douglas fir region of western Oregon, 6,246,167,000 board feet was harvested from private, state and Bureau of Land Management (O & C) forestlands.
The log harvest report was compiled from data obtained from inspectors of the state forestry department and field inspections and reports from the U. S. Forest Service and Indian Service.

Plans and ideas for building help sell forest products

Steady sales mean steady paychecks

The forest industry of Oregon and Washington directly accounts for over 133,000 jobs, with an annual payroll of about $600 million. Thousands of others are employed in remanufacturing wood into an increasing variety of products.

Steady employment in the forest industry is a result of the steady sale of its products. Successful marketing brings a constant flow of money into this area that reaches out in ever-expanding circles... money spent for services, food, clothing, homes, automobiles, and taxes which support schools and government functions. All told, the forest industry is the foundation for more than half of the economy of Oregon and Washington.

To sell forest products in a highly competitive building materials market, special customer services are of major importance. In retail lumber yards, for instance, one of the most useful services provided for individual and professional builders alike is the farm and home building plan and idea file. Prepared by competent designers and engineers, this file includes a wide variety of modern construction plans as well as building specifications and complete material lists.

In addition to building plans, lumber dealers are provided with up-to-date technical literature by the forest products industry to assist customers in the proper use of wood. Most lumber dealers can also offer valuable personal counsel, based upon wide experience in the building materials field. Such special customer services augment the advertising and merchandising programs of the forest products industry and help maintain the steady sales volume upon which continuous mill operation depends.
