COTTAGE GROVE, LANE COUNTY, OREGON

NUMBER 45

EVA McMURRICK, left, 14-year-old 4-H club member from Cottage Grove, got the latest word on breadmaking this week at annual 4-H summer school at Oregon State college. The course in breadmaking is one of 92 in home economics and agriculture offered to 1900 girls and boys attending the 10-day summer school. With Eva are Deanna Maurer, center, Silverton, and Linda Palmer, Harper.

THEIR MONEY in safe keeping in the 4-H club bank, these three 4-H youth despairingly claim they're "fresh broke." Left to right, they are Evau Wheeler, Rt. 2, Junction City; David Suttello, Rt. 1, Eugene; and Eddie Hemenway, Rt. 1, Cottage Grove.

35 'Cream of the Crop' Lane 4-H Members Attend OSC Summer School

Lane County's 35 "cream-of-the-crop" 4-H club members joined 2,000 members from throughout Oregon for one of the largest 4-H summer school sessions in 41 years of history on the Oregon State college campus, beginning June 12 and lasting through June 22. The "quadrangle" — heart of the OSC scene — became the hub of activity for gay, hoop-skirted girls and blue-jeaned boys who hurried from their housing in 58 sorority and fraternity houses and dormitories to classrooms in seven major college buildings. Joining the exuberant youngsters were a hundred extension agents, 4-H club leaders, and special instructors who will teach classes as diversified as cooking and beef raising to Swedish embroidery, "bebop," and swimming. Oregon's 4-H members are introduced to a broad program of many different subjects during these ten days," said Burton H. Hutton, state 4-H leader. "At most, they can get a good taste—but that taste often develops interests leading to vocations or hobbies that may enrich their lives. Nine Members Honored

May Employment Shows Biggest Upswing Since '50

Nearly 10,000 persons went back to work during May in the biggest upswing at this season since 1950, according to figures submitted by 26 local offices of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission. Only 18,300 workers were looking for jobs as June opened, comparing with 28,200 a month ago and 27,700 last year. The metropolitan area reported only 7,800 not able to find jobs, not much over half the number listed in 1955 and a drop of nearly 3,000 in the past month. With berry picking and other outdoor jobs just getting well under way in the four counties around Portland, still lower estimates are expected during the coming weeks. Every office in Oregon with the exception of Ontario, Coos Bay and Tillamook showed fewer unemployed than on June 1, 1955, but in several Eastern Oregon communities the margin was small. Partial layoffs at plywood plants and other mills were responsible for coastal slowdowns, while a potato plant's temporary closure affected the border area. Payments to insured workers during May dropped to $1,102,643, nearly a million dollars under the April total of $2,083,231 and about 18 per cent less than last year's comparable amount. Claims for the last week of May continued well below recent years with only 7,146 persons asking for compensation. Opening up of agricultural activities, particularly gathering of peas in the Milton-Freewater area and picking of berries and other early crops in Western Oregon, is expected to provide jobs for many of the unemployed, also attracting many of the students, migrants and housewives usually brought into the labor market about this time of year. Employment is expected to reach a peak in about three months with late harvests and other seasonal operations near capacity. We judge ourselves by what we are capable of doing; others judge us by what we have done. —Longfellow

Describing the leadership workshop as "most valuable sessions" in 4-H summer school, Miss Hattie Mae Rhonemus, Lane agent in 4-H work, declared that such training of older 4-H members in leadership is a "major goal" of the 10-day session. Lane 4-H members selected for the leadership project include Rae Nora Blood and Sara Jeanne Duncan, Lowell, and Karol Hill, Route 5, Eugene, who have completed six years in 4-H club work; Julieann Umphenour, Springfield, 4 years; Janet McCarty, Dexter, 3 years; Ivan Ellingson, Mapleton, 5 years; Eddie Hemenway, Cottage Grove, 4 years; Barry Vaughn, Walton, 5 years; and Floyd Elliott, Florence, 5 years. Special Events Highlights of the 10-day session are Oregon Bankers' Day on June 15; Governor's Day, June 18; Annual Stunt Night, June 18; Annual Forestry Day and Talent Night, June 19; 4-H summer school style revue, June 20; and an address by Dr. A. L. Strand, president of Oregon State college, and the traditional candle lighting service, June 21. Lane County girls modeling in the style revue are Mary Ellen Ray, Eugene; Deila Kokkier, Junction City; Sara Jeanne Duncan and Rae Nora Blood, Lowell. All special assemblies and programs are scheduled at the Coliseum, and parents of 4-H members are invited. Additional details as to time of these events may be had by calling the local Lane 4-H office at DI 5-8418. Other events scheduled for the session are a 4-H club Sunday service at the Coliseum; International night, June 17; a Saturday night jamboree, June 16, and "smokeless" smokers and pajama parties at various houses.

Miscellaneous Data: Cash dividend payments of publicly reporting corporations for March and the first quarter were up 20% and 18%, respectively, over the same period a year ago—Electric energy output for the week ended May 5 was nearly 13% over the like week in 1955—Governmental and private research and development expenditures totaled $5.4 billion in 1955, more than double the amount spent in 1949 and six times those of 1941.

Cottage Grove TV, Radio Shop Moved

Tom Mitchell, proprietor of the Cottage Grove TV and Radio repair shop, has announced removal of his shop from the M. & W. Market building to his home at 756 South 7th street. The new location, on 7th street between Harrison and Quincy streets is easy to find. Lower overhead and better pickup and delivery service prompted Mr. Mitchell to make the change after nearly four years in the South Fifth street location. He is using a garage building for his present repair shop and plans on remodeling the building and adding electric heat before the coming of fall, he said.
