

SESSION SQUIBS FROM SALEM

heartily even when he is one of the victims. He, Senator Thomas and Senator Dimick, all charged with inviting the congressional bee to give them a hypodermic, were engaged in conversation when a pernicious bystander suggested to Mr. Hurley that he introduce a resolution barring members with congressional aspirations from taking part in debate upon the floor. "That would be tantamount to adjourning," was the quick rejoinder, and all joined in the hearty laugh.

A member here has remarked that one who was elected as a watchdog of the treasury has descended into a common hungry pup.

"Patriotic bunk" is becoming a phrase of general use and application about the state house. There are one or two who, every time the word soldier is mentioned, set the American eagle into motion and proceed to denounce all her tail feathers and any other of that bird's badly ruffled clothing which offers a figurative handhold for oratorical pyrotechnics. Members are beginning to realize that even a measure concerning the soldier boys may have some demerits and this so-called "patriotic bunk," which would permit no argument as to merits or demerits, is getting on the nerves of some whose real, practical patriotism has often been tried and never found wanting.

Attorney J. M. Devers is here looking after legal matters in the supreme court building and visiting the legislative halls during spare moments for amusement, other moving picture houses being closed on account of the influenza epidemic.

"The language my colleague has used would befit a meeting of the bolshevik or I. W. W.'s but has no place here," was hurled at Senator Jones, of Lane, by Senator Huston, of Multnomah, in the debate upon the bill providing that soldiers and sailors be given preference in all public works. Senator Jones was one of three who voted against the bill, although there were some senators who said they were tempted to do so because of the patriotic bunk used in boosting the measure. Senator Jones contended that those who loafed around cigar stores and pool rooms until they were drafted into the army are no more entitled to industrial preference than others who stayed at home to take care of large families. Senator Beas promptly registered a vote for the soldier boys.

One of those at present safely ensconced in one of the salary-attached offices almost directly under the big dome suggests that the legislature proceed to an increase in the salaries of all officers, to the end that when the abolishment program is put through those responsible will be able to show a much larger lopping off of salaries.

Colonel W. G. D. Mercer, of Eugene, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, delivered the prayer in the house Thursday morning and was up to his usual form in this line. He is on the regular list and takes his turn with the divines of the city who have little else to do besides saving the state while the flu ban is on.

Rev. H. N. Aldrich, formerly of Cottage Grove, has charge of arranging for prayer in both houses each morning and finds it quite a task to see that someone is always on hand for the job. Rev. Aldrich has been confined to the house this week with illness and has had to turn his duties over to others.

Representative Graham, of Lane, made his maiden speech today in support of his memorial to congress asking that the federal government use a little less speed in the demobilization of the armies and take into consideration the ability of the country to absorb the men upon the labor market. He was highly complimented by numerous of the members for his effort.

Representative Bean has introduced a bill for the election of a committee on committees to take the appointment of committees out of the hands of the speaker. As a former candidate, tentative and otherwise, for the speakership, Mr. Bean knows full well what a relief it would be to the speaker to have this responsibility put upon the members, and how it might greatly aid the speaker in organizing an harmonious working body.

It is an indisputable fact that the opinion still prevails among a large proportion of the citizenship that members of the legislature have some means of augmenting the pitance they receive in the form of salary, amounting to $129 for 40 days of service, and it is just as indisputable that it would be a dangerous thing to do to offer a bribe in any form to legislative members. I doubt if there is a member of the present session to whom any consideration could be held out that would have the result desired by the person who would be audacious enough to make such a proposal. I attended the two sessions of the legislature one and in neither of those were there more than three or four who were not entirely above suspicion. I have noted with satisfaction that the personnel of both bodies has improved with every session, and many are the high-minded men of the state serving this year for no other motive than what little glory may be attached to a legislative seat and the desire to be of real service to the state. Many members are making sacrifices of a monetary nature that run into the hundreds of dollars. Many members do not vote just as I would like to see them vote, and some find later that they made mistakes, but none of these, so far as I have been able to discern, can be laid to undue influence on the part of the so-called predatory interests. It is a pleasing surprise to me to see that despite the false aspersions cast upon those who are making these sacrifices that better men are coming to each session. As the character of the personnel improves, I look to see these false charges against members grow beautifully less.

Speaker Jones sounded a warning the other day when he said that he would expect members to make use of their own stenographers as much as possible upon committee work. Stenographers are not always as pleasant as they might be about doing work outside of that for which they are definitely employed and members might accomplish some true economies by having an understanding in advance with their personal stenographers that they would be expected, during idle time, to perform any other services that might be requested of them.

An amusing incident happened in the house the other day. The clerk was calling the roll on the passage of a bill. One member did not answer to his name and the clerk observed that he was in close conversation with his stenographer, to whom he was dictating a letter. This member is slightly deaf and did not hear his name, though it was twice called. As a member must vote when present, it was necessary for the speaker to get the attention of the members. A vigorous use of the gavel produced the desired effect. The member, taken unawares, was nonplussed for a few moments but finally voted aye, while the stenographer turned a beautiful rosy pink.

State Capitol, Salem, Ore.—Major J. M. Williams, of Eugene, former adjutant general of Oregon and law partner of Representative Bean, was mingling and commingling with members here this week and pointing out methods that the I. W. W.'s and Bolsheviki may make use of to ply their nefarious propaganda.

Senator Bell and his defeated opponent in the recent election were talking. "It's much better the way it is," said Bell. "If I had been defeated I would have had to stay at home. The way it is we can both be here, and you get a better job in the end than I did, anyway."

W. C. Conner, peripatetic editor of Willamette valley newspapers, peripatetic into the capitol this week in the interest of an enabling act for the erection of a bridge across the Willamette river at Harrisburg, where Mr. Conner is just at present doing a pretty good job of newspapering.

With nearly everyone else asking for increases of salaries and declaring it impossible for state officers to maintain their official dignity and provide shoes and stockings for growing families.

lies for any less than $3,000 to $5,000 a year, members of the legislature propose that they too have a slight increase and measures to this effect will be proposed to the people for their endorsement.

Ed. Cusick, of Albany, former joint senator and recent candidate for state treasurer, was here this week.

Senators Bell and Jones are co-operating to the extent of having introduced a measure to increase the salary of county treasurer of Lane county from $1,200 to $1,500.

Colonel John Leader, of the university faculty and perhaps the most loved Irishman in the United States, was a visitor here yesterday and when he was given a most complimentary introduction to the assembled members of the house he blushed a beautiful pink that aroused the envy of every one of the stenographers present and there are some who are no mean novices in this fair feminine art.

Former members of home guard units in Lane county, the banner county of the state for organizations of this kind, will be interested in the several bills presented for the reorganization of these organizations.
