THINGS WE THINK

Things Others Think and What We Think of the Things Others Think

All hypocrites are sinners and most sinners are hypocrites.

Be an optimist. It will make you feel better and make everyone else feel better.

The looking glass might be more popular if it didn't stick so closely to the truth all the time.

A small lie is just as much of a lie as a big one.

There are so many people who get ahead of us in doing just what we intended to do.

A cipher is an important thing in our business life; not so with a do nothing.

Pawnbrokers probably know the redeeming features of a lot of people.

It would be well once in awhile if Truk crushed to earth would stay there.

Some people may get hot headed from the heat resulting from letting the wheels turn too rapidly.

The fellow who said you can't get something for nothing, just as like as not forgot that he hadn't paid his newspaper subscription.

The reason there is so much indigestion is that so many people swallow everything told them about how to care for their stomachs.

In a recent address before an editorial meeting a speaker, in advocating a paid-up subscription list, dramatically exclaimed: "Delinquent subscribers do not pay." Now, that's what we'd call an irrefutable statement.

The Watt hour used by lighting companies may be considerably shorter than the one familiar to the lay mind.

When a wife doesn't think her hubby is devoting enough time to her, she should remember that he has got to recuperate for the oversupply given her before marriage.

Some people that we call hogs would make mighty poor bacon.

Human hair is selling for $30 a pound. We are pleased to learn at last that those long-haired musical fanatics are worth something.

An exchange enlightens us by saying that man was originally a tree animal. We have seen some "up a stump" even at this late day.

It's funny how a woman will remember the day and month of her birthday anniversary, but can't remember the year she was born.

On the grounds that they carry disease germs, Iowa male school teachers have got to remove their whiskers and mustaches. A man's got to be smooth to hold a school job in that state.

Repetition is poor rhetoric, but good advertising.

The only really satisfactory revenge is to make your enemies ashamed.

A woman would get a divorce from a man who abused her the way some of them do themselves with their clothing.

Ten thousand people are reported to have attended an outdoor baptismal service south a short time ago. A sort of overflowing congregation.

Keep your thoughts pure and sweet and you need not worry about the utterances of your mouth.

A mother who does not teach her daughter to do housework is not doing justice by her daughter nor her future son-in-law.

The assessor knows of many men who have untold wealth.

What would some people do if others weren't making mistakes that need criticizing.

People who predict calamity seem to get considerable comfort out of seeing it come true.

Take away hope and everyone would be a pessimist.

Good roads are the highways to prosperity.

A man never claims to understand woman—a woman always thinks she understands men, until after she marries one.

A girl never talks an arm off of a man when he has that arm engaged in hugging her.

A woman doesn't think so much of men after marrying one as she did before.

GAVE LIFE FOR HER PEOPLE

Pretty Legend Concerning Maiden Worthy to Be Known as Indian Joan of Arc.

In the great northwestern country, between the mighty Rockies and the beautiful Cascades, are the mountains called the Huckleberry range. They spread their arms comfortably about the many small mining towns of Washington. A soldierly array of pines and tamaracks keep watch over all the inhabitants of Huckleberry range—the rough farmers, rugged miners and the few native redskins still left.

A large tribe of Indians once lived in these mountains, from the heights of which one can look far over the blue haze of Idaho, view the gleaming wide ribbon of the Columbia river, or behold the white tips of the Canadian Rockies.

A tale is told by the folk of Huckleberry range about Camas, the fairest maid of this ancient Indian tribe. During one of the many forest fires of the region, when the entire range seemed threatened with destruction, this Indian Joan of Arc gathered in her arms some little pink and white flowers and disappeared down the winding trail.

She went to the very edge of the fire, where the dried grasses hissed and sizzled with the flames and the blazing pines stretched out scorching fingers toward her and the dainty peace offering. Then—the legend says—the Great Spirit was appeased and sheets of rain hid the brave Indian maid from the view of her people.

Never more was Camas seen by her tribe, but every spring since then the strange little pink and white flowers have covered the wide mountains of Huckleberry range. In honor of the Indian girl the blossom is called the Camas flower.

CLAIM BLOOD OF ROMANS

Tuaregs of the Sahara Desert Are Supposed to Be Descended From Once World Rulers.

The original gas-masked people of the world are the Tuaregs of the Sahara desert—a strange race, supposed to be descended from the Roman colonists of North Africa and the Arabs who carried the standard of Mohammed into the wilderness 1,300 years ago. An immense and almost unknown country is held by the Tuaregs, a fierce fighting people, who range on swift camels from Algeria to Timbuctoo. Tales are told of white-walled cities in the Tuareg lands, with Roman theaters, circuses and baths still standing as the Romans left them, and now the haunt of the Tuareg tribesmen.

The mystery that surrounds the Tuaregs is doubled by their custom of always going masked. A mask of white or black cloth covers the mouth and nostrils, and, so the Tuaregs say, protects them from the dust and windblown sand of the desert, from the poisonous vapors of the Niger valleys, and, no doubt, from the disease germs which float so freely in the filthy towns of Africa. Certain it is that infectious diseases ravage other North African people, while the Tuaregs maintain magnificent health from year to year. Few travelers have ever seen the Tuaregs unmasked. Those who have declare that they are as white as any Europeans, and decidedly handsome, their pale skins doubtless being largely due to the mask which keeps off the burning sun.

Thoughts in Music.

A girl, artistic to her very fingertips, had been "learning to play the piano" for six years, and had come to hate music. She was a victim of the prevalent mechanical mode of teaching. On being questioned, she admitted that there was one thing that interested her—a tune written by herself. "I loved to do it, and I can sing it." Here she had used her own initiative, and the exercise of it had made her happy. "Teachers will find that all children are interested in thinking music, and that the interest grows where otherwise it is apt to flag." The value of folk songs is dilated on, and the author has found that boys like the Wagner motives, some of which are as simple as folk-songs.

The Greyhound.

The greyhound was first used as a good producer for its owners. It was necessary to have a dog that could run fast to capture animals for food, when weapons were in their infancy. There was no scale of points nor any typical lines on which this dog was bred. As a matter of fact utility was the foundation of all the great breeds of greyhounds. A wide-chested, straight-shouldered, slack-jointed, poor-quartered dog is unable to run fast and a dog that had those faults could not do what the greyhound does. And that is the reason why some form of greyhound can be traced back as far as we have any dog history.

Early Prohibition in England.

Prohibition under stress of necessity does not first make its appearance in America. England before now has submitted to it. In the years of murrain and famine during the reign of Edward III, when the poor stole "fatte dogges to eat," when "theeves that were in prison did pluck in pieces those that were newly brought amongst them, and greedily devoured them halfe alive," then we had prohibition. The king forbade all maiting of corn for ale making, and so, we are told, greatly relieved the national distress. —London Chronicle.

You can verify Cottage Grove endorsement.

Read this: F. C. Ralston, retired farmer, 447 S. Third St., says: "Whenever I have an opportunity to speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills I do not hesitate to do so. This medicine regulates the action of the kidneys and overcomes pains due to disordered kidneys. I have been obliged to use a kidney medicine on several occasions for kidney complaint and in every instance, Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give satisfactory results."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ralston had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y. j13-20
