

LAND OF KOSSUTH

Mixed Races Make Up Population of Hungary.

Country Long Under German and Austrian Domination Until Magyars Secured Political Emancipation—Has Immense Mineral Riches.

Hungary has a population of 20,000,000. The area of Hungary is about equal to that of the state of New Mexico.

Hungary is unusually rich in its mineral deposits. Its mines contain almost inexhaustible quantities of gold, silver, lead, copper, iron, coal and rock salt.

Hungary, like Austria, is inhabited by several distinct races, but since the ninth century, when the Magyars invaded the region from Asia and conquered it, they have controlled the government.

Self-government through parliament in Hungary is of ancient origin, being founded upon a charter called the Golden Bull, which dates back to 1222, and is thus almost contemporary with the Magna Charta of England.

Budapest, the capital city of Hungary, consists of the sister towns of Buda and Pest. Lying on either side of the Danube, just at that point where it definitely sets south, Pest spreads itself out over the flat sandy plain on the left bank, while Buda occupies a series of small and steep hills on the right bank.

Empress Marie Theresa Germanized Hungary as completely as she Germanized all her alienated Austrian provinces, and German flourished as the official, bureaucratic, scientific and society medium in Hungary until the Magyars broke loose from Austrian thralldom and secured their political emancipation. Then German went to the wall, and today there are millions in Hungary wholly ignorant of the German language.

The great national hero of Hungary was Louis Kossuth, whose memory is revered by Hungarians as that of Washington is revered by the people of the United States. Kossuth visited America in 1851, and it is a matter of history that no foreigner save Lafayette ever received at the hands of the American people such marks of esteem as were bestowed on the Hungarian exile. After the failure of the Hungarian revolution, of which he was the leader, in 1849, Kossuth sought refuge in Turkey. Austria and Russia demanded his extradition, but the Porte, resisting all threats, declined to give him up, in which attitude Turkey was supported by England and France. At length the intervention of England and the United States secured his liberation, and at the beginning of September, 1851, he was permitted to avail himself of the invitation of the United States to come to America as the guest of the nation. In New York, where he landed, he was enthusiastically received. He attended meetings and received deputations in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and numerous other places. At the national capital a great banquet was given in his honor by the members of congress.

Champion for the Whale.

Under the new law the only game that can be shot from an airplane is a whale. Also it is still permissible to bombard whales from buzz wagons or motor launches. The whale has few champions among the game lawbreakers, says the Los Angeles Times. Any one stumbling on the fresh spoor of a whale is permitted to plug the animal on sight with whatever artillery he may have on hand. Why the whale should be thus marked for slaughter is not explained. Left to itself the whale is a perfectly harmless beast, having no grudge against any man. They will not even bite a loan shark unless provoked. There is no reason why they should be left at the mercy of every pea shooting aviator. That was no way for the legislators to celebrate the week set aside for being kind to dumb animals.

Germany's Big Mistake.

The distinguished Danish vegetarian, Dr. M. Hindede, has made the interesting discovery that Germany owes her downfall to the pig. In 1914 she had over 25,000,000 pigs to feed. For the first five months of the war slaughtering was discouraged, at the cost of enormous reserves of foodstuffs. Early in 1915 this policy was reversed, and by April the number of pigs had been reduced by 35 per cent. Then a reaction in favor of pigs set in, and their numbers were kept at about 70 per cent of the pre-war figure. Not till late in 1917 and early in 1918 was the fatality of this mistake realized, and then it was too late. Doctor Hindede argues that Denmark avoided starvation by killing her pigs early.

Tip From Little Brother.

A youngster who heard an older sister say she would like to "shake" a boy who was rather attentive decided that he had solved the problem for her. He had a little girl playmate, who, when she tires of him, runs home.

After receiving such treatment the other day, he entered the house and said: "Mother, I know how sister can shake John. Mary knows how to do it and she'll tell her."

"How does Mary do it?" mother asked.

"Oh, she just runs away. That's how you can shake anybody."—Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post.

A HISTORY OF THE 65TH.

The battalion here occupied an ideal position, the guns being emplaced along a hard road into a bank about ten feet high which gave them the greatest protection possible, while the hard road made maneuvering the guns and hauling the ammunition a comparatively simple proposition.

About this time there were several changes in the personnel of the regiment: Captain James L. Hatcher was relieved from command of C battery and shortly after promoted and sent back to the States; Captain Louis H. Howard was relieved as adjutant and assigned to C, where he did exceptionally good work, and Captain William R. Deebie, C. A. C., was assigned as battalion adjutant.

On October 6th the battalion was ordered to move over across the Meuse river and went into an old French position north of Verdun, near Bras. We got into position in time to open fire on October 8, acting under the 17th corps (French). A great deal of firing was done at this position and it was held until about October 21, at which time the writer was relieved and assigned to the heavy artillery board, A. E. F.

By this time the batteries had gained considerable experience on the guns and each battery had a record of seven shots in five minutes from one gun which considering the weight of the projectile (290 lbs.) and the fact that they had to be handled from where they were piled by hand is considered exceptionally good time. One battery had a record of 21 shots in 15 minutes all from one gun and the other fired 35 shots in 25 minutes, the rate being the same.

About the time the writer was relieved the promotions for various officers came in: Captain Carl E. Hoeker was promoted major and succeeded him in command of the battalion; Captain Deebie was ordered to the States; 1st Lieuts. Fisher, Hawkins and Lake were promoted captains, and 2nd Lieuts. Skinner, Carrington, Lundstrom, Bullard, Sloan, Clippert and Nichols were promoted 1st lieutenants. Captain Fisher returned to the States, and the others remained on duty with the battalion.

As to the further exploits of the battalion I have no knowledge except that they remained in the line until the signing of the armistice, changing position several times and always giving a good account of themselves.

TESTED RECIPES.

Fruit Salad—Serving on individual plates, have good white lettuce prepared, about three medium leaves to each serving, on which place a piece of canned Hawaiian pineapple; then take the white prepared pears, coming in glass jars, drain, cut in two, take out seeds, if any; place the half pear on the slice of pineapple, place a small lettuce leaf in the top and a red maraschino cherry in that; wash with a good fruit dressing of oil, lemon juice and salt, with a pinch of sugar.

Fried Fish—Take the fish and wash and clean it; then sprinkle a little salt all over it. Take a big plate and put a cup of white flour in the plate; take a fork and with it take the fish and roll the fish in the flour and then take each slice and put in the frying pan when the fat is so hot it smokes; and let the fish fry until it is brown; then turn it on the other side. Do not let it burn. Keep the fat hot so the fish will soak up the fat.

Dried Apricot Bread—Mix one cupful and a half each of yellow corn meal, white corn meal, graham flour and wheat flour; then add one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking soda, dissolved in half a cupful of warm water, one cupful and a half of stewed dried apricots, and one cupful and a half of milk, or sufficient to make a soft batter. Divide into greased molds, cover with greased paper and steam for four hours. Cool, turn out, cut into slices and serve sprinkled with sugar. The apricots may be rubbed through a sieve.

Bean Fricassee—Any leftover boiled kidney beans may be baked with alternate layers of onions and bits of bacon. Add sufficient tomato sauce to moisten. Place light grating of cheese on top with a little minced parsley over it. Serve with dry oatmeal cakes.

WANT-AD J. RATES—The minimum price on a want ad. is 25c. Three insertions for the price of two. One-half cent a word after third insertion. No advertisement put on books for less than 50c.

PAY CASH AND SAVE MONEY. On and after July 1 The Sentinel will make an extra charge of 25 cents on all charge accounts which amount to less than 50 cents during the month. An extra charge of 10 cents will be made on all accounts of less than $5.00 for each statement sent after the first one. It is cheaper to pay cash on small items and more satisfactory all around. j27tf
