Household Hints

The housewife will save herself rough hands by having a liquid cream convenient to use after having them in water.

Add a pinch of cream of tartar to the whites of eggs when they are half beaten. This keeps them from falling before being used.

Make paper funnels out of pieces of wrapping paper and use them for pouring sugar, tea, coffee cereals, etc., into their proper receptacles.

When hubby's shirts are worn too long for him to wear take the backs of them and make neat aprons and use the other part for dust cloths.

Crippled silk stockings are cut into narrow strips and crocheted into floor rugs—with a buttonhook, if you like. For the bathroom or for the colonial bedroom, one of these rugs made of the remains of pastel colored silk stockings would be charming indeed.

Kitchen walls should be painted so that they may be wiped with a damp cloth, making cleanliness possible without great demand on the strength and without disarrangement caused by whitewashing or calcimining.

Building in Denmark.

There are at present three phases of Denmark's building difficulties—land, materials and money. The land question can probably be settled and also that of materials, but a general arrangement of the financial question must first be made. The cost of building has increased from 310 crowns per square meter ($7.72 per square foot) to 720 crowns per square meter ($17.93 per square foot). This is discouraging private initiative and corporations are now conducting one-third of the building enterprises in Copenhagen and the provincial cities. To help these building corporations during the war, the government voted $1,000,000. This was not sufficient, and by a law passed February 5, 1918, provision was made to finance these corporations and compensate them for some of the extra expenses of building. All in all the state and municipalities subsidize the building corporations to the extent of 60 per cent of the increased costs, which are 100 per cent, so that the houses cost the corporation 40 per cent more than before.

The Fool Streak.

"The fool streak is as much an organized organ of the human body as is the conscience or the appendix," asserted old Festus Pester. "It is that attribute which prompts us to overestimate our own importance, to fancy that we can beat the other fellow at his own game, to believe that the average Hon. is infested with a herd of friends who devote their lives to earnestly soliciting him to run for office, to accept pomposity for ability, to dash after dashing widows, to expect a man with a horse laugh to have horse sense, to plant congressional garden seeds, to call chance acquaintances 'brother,' to buy nonessentials on the installment plan, and so forth. The conscience can be reduced or eradicated by moral suasion. The appendix is removable by an operation. But the only efficacious method of getting rid of the fool streak is for the victim to seat himself and carefully and prayerfully pluck it out a little at a time, as one picks the basting threads out of a new garment or the bones from a sunfish."—Kansas City Star.

It Is Easy To Imitate Names

The public is constantly being swindled by imitations, counterfeiters and substitutes that resemble in name and appearance Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It is because the original Foley's is so good, so reliable and so well known that these frauds find sale.

Always Has It In His Home

T. J. McCall, Athens, O., writes: "We have used Foley's Honey and Tar in our home for several years and find it almost invaluable for coughs and colds, and especially for croup for our children. We are never without it and can not too highly recommend it for coughs, colds or croup for either grown-up people or children."

Foley's Honey and Tar COMPOUND

IS PLEASANT TO TAKE, and soothes the raw, inflamed surfaces; stops the rasping, strangling feeling in the throat. It is made of the purest, freshest and finest ingredients to be had, contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and costs twice as much to make as any imitation of it.

For more than thirty years Foley's Honey and Tar has been used with satisfaction and success.
