CONCENTRATED CIDER WILL KEEP SWEET INDEFINITELY

Sweet cider, rendered commercially possible the year around by concentration, looms up as a healthful oasis in the arid desert of national prohibition, and opens a profitable outlet for wind-fall apples, say the specialists of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture.

They have developed a process for concentrating sweet cider which consists essentially of freezing the fresh apple juice, grinding the frozen product, and then by means of a centrifugal process, separating the essential cider solids from the frozen water, in much the same way that cream is separated from milk. Five gallons of cider can be reduced by this process to one gallon of syrupy cider concentrate. This cider concentrate, being so much less in bulk, can be shipped and stored much more economically than the bulky fresh cider. It is also easier to keep sweet when concentrated. When it is desired to use cider concentrate it can be restored to its original bulk, condition and flavor simply by the addition of ordinary drinking water.

Concentrated cider will keep sweet much longer than in its original condition, and in cold storage it will keep sweet indefinitely. Its reduced bulk makes it practicable to keep in cold storage. The concentrated product thus promises to make fresh cider available at soda fountains throughout the summer months.

This product, to be profitable, should be made on a fairly large scale, and preferably in connection with a commercial ice plant located near an apple section. Since the cider season is short it is doubtful whether it would be profitable to erect a refrigerating plant solely for the purpose of freezing the cider. As a by-product or a side-line to a regular ice plant the cost of the process would be reduced materially, as the cider-making season comes at the very time when the demand for ice is greatly diminished by the approach of cold weather. As the concentrated cider has not yet been marketed on a commercial scale, those proposing to undertake the process should first satisfy themselves that they have a ready and convenient outlet for their product.

Detailed information regarding the process and the machinery necessary will be furnished upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

STOP TRYING TO BURN UP YOUR OWN HOME

The housing problem is one of the great issues of the day. All unnecessary construction was forbidden during the war, and now that restrictions have been withdrawn the high prices of materials and labor and industrial trouble have tended to reduce the amount of building. In many industrial centers newcomers are unable to get houses to live in, rents have gone up, and the situation has become so serious that state and municipal commissions are seeking a solution.

Why not stop burning up the existing buildings, if there are not enough to go around and more cannot be built under existing conditions? Thousands of homes are burned each month, most of them through carelessness. If housing is so important, if homes are so hard to find, why not be careful with those that we have? Apply fire prevention methods. Be careful about matches, smoking, lighting and heating apparatus and gasoline. Clear out the rubbish, inspect the flues, watch the shingle roofs. Conservation is the order of the day, and if the shortage of dwellings will cause householders to be careful about the fire hazards of their homes, one criminal cause of that shortage will be greatly reduced.

THINGS WE THINK

Things Others Think and What We Think of the Things Others Think

When you get into an argument with someone, don't stop to count 100 until you have taken the precaution to see that your opponent is doing the same thing.

An expert in matters of that kind says tying a weight to a mule's tail will stop his braying. There are some precautions necessary to be taken, however, as preliminary to placing the weight.

A man isn't necessarily enjoying his mother-in-law's funeral just because he doesn't open up the flood gates of his lachrymal glands.

A woman never passes in front of a mirror without stopping for a personal inspection—neither does a man if he thinks no one is looking.

An English doctor says too many children are born. Be careful, Doc, or someone will be criticizing your parents because they were not race suicidists.

After you have given into your wife to stop her crying, doesn't it make you mad to hear her telling the neighbors how she can work you for anything she wants?

A wise housewife showed the tramp the woodpile and said: "Those who labor not, neither shall they eat." "That's too old a saw for me," the tramp replied, as he started on his way.

It is reported that Rockefeller is going to amalgamate the churches. Religion is being sold for less than the cost of production, but there are a lot of people who would never notice a raise in price.

A new style religion, in which no hell is recognized, has been organized at Chicago. Of course, it is easy for a person living in Chicago to believe that a kind Providence would impose no further punishment.

Brotherly love is a good thing when you are trying to get his sister.

If we could see ourselves as the oculist sees us, we would all wear glasses.

A safe and conservative man is one with $1,500 in the bank who doesn't go and buy an auto.

A Massachusetts woman who had her clothes taken on dressmaker's attachment is seeking "redress" in the courts.

We understand that the New York health officers are going to insist that dairymen boil all the water that goes into the milk.

There are a lot of men willing to die for the flag who would not swing the parlor carpet in the breeze for wifery for love or money.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Well, there are a lot of country newspaper men who have got something coming.

A Chicago man chewed up a $5 bill with a sandwich—but the restaurant keeper sympathized with him and let him have the sandwich for nothing, so he came out even anyway.

There must be lots of milk in the milky way if all the babies in heaven get their meals there.

A man was recently adjudged insane because he imagined he was richer than Rockefeller. It must be great to be crazy.

The newspapers have made prominent mention of the recent trial in which a husband secured $15,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections.

Why shouldn't a woman worth that much affection be liberal with her friends?

The dries have accomplished a lot since the day when the whole earth was covered with water.

There are a lot of people in this old world who need not fear wild animals that eat live meat only.

When a girl really loves her hubby she can see no need of saying her prayers during the honeymoon.

If the world would return to the old style fancy dress for men, church attendance might improve considerably.

A trustful wife is one who doesn't inquire too closely into hubby's doings, because she knows that if she did she would lose faith in him.

A man who insists on paying his street car fare after the conductor has passed him up, should be put in touch with Diogenes.
