LEGISLATIVE SIDELIGHTS

a reading clerk Friday afternoon. Two young women from Cottage Grove, who had been refused by the reading clerk, had been refused by the elevator man a trip to the landing which leads to the big dome. There is no other means of getting to the dome, probably a wise precaution on the part of the state, as in this manner the number of visitors to the dome and the hours of their visits can be easily regulated. The two maidens appealed to the said reading clerk, who being unable to resist the appeal of beauty in distress, especially feminine beauty, and more especially Cottage Grove feminine beauty, prevailed upon the elevator man to make the trip and constituted himself guide for the party. The journey up and down the many flights of winding stairways had been completed without incident, when it was discovered that the latch of the door leading into the dome proper had been pulled out by a party coming up later than the Cottage Grove contingent. The hour for calling the house to order was rapidly approaching with the indispensable reading clerk locked in the tower, the only man in a sea of beauty distressed, and not alone Cottage Grove beauty this time. It was fully ten minutes before the effort to get the square chunk of iron into the square hole on the other side were successful and many sighs of relief joined company with the beads of perspiration from the face of the reading clerk resulting from his frantic efforts to open the prison. The Cottage Grove young women were Miss Ruth Phelps and Miss Grace Harding.

So persistent and so unwarranted and vicious have been some of the attacks upon Governor Oleott that despite the grave errors he may have made a reaction has set in and the feeling of a large number is turning to one of sympathy.

Representative Wheeler was the only member from Lane who got to fill the speaker's chair and one of the very few from the entire house who were called upon to preside temporarily. He wielded the gavel with a dexterity and forcefulness that indicated that he meant business.

L. E. Bean is looked upon as an avowed candidate, and very likely a successful one, for the next speakership.

Many times during the closing hours was hasty and unwise action forestalled by the calmer heads.

Representative Haines lost several of his toes in a farm tractor accident shortly before the session, but he never lost his head at any time during the session. "Let's not be boys," and "I move the previous question" were his favorite speeches.

Representative Cross, contrary to his name, is one of the most genial members and has no trouble putting his listeners into a good humor, while Representative Merryman is very quiet and seldom smiles outwardly.

Sometimes progressive journalism becomes too progressive. One of the most progressive papers of the state had prepared in advance a picture of Mrs. Thompson and Senator Farrell, authors of the woman's suffrage amendment resolution, watching Governor Oleott signing the resolution after its adoption. Outside of the fact that the picture was printed a day ahead of the ratification of woman's suffrage and the further fact that the governor has not signed the resolution and does not sign any resolutions, the little piece of progressive journalism was a mighty neat little stunt.

W. C. Conner, former Cottage Grove editor, and now the big rooster on the Northwest Poultry Journal, dropped into the state house for a few moments, presumably to look over the chickens.

THINGS WE THINK

Things Others Think and What We Think of the Things Others Think

Disease can not enter where sunshine is. Keep the clouds out of your heart and ill health will pass you by.

When you look at the great protuberance of hair that some women wear as a counterbalance on the rear of their dome of thought, it makes you think it must take a lot of nerve to call it all their own.

Down in Tennessee they are trying to find out if it is a crime to kill an editor. Going on the theory that no human being could live the way editors have to, it would not be a crime.

A man who is a republican or a democrat because his father before him was, is a dead one for the same reason.

A man who claims to know, says there are two million microbes in a dish of ice cream. Ain't it a shame for us men folks to insist on feeding innocent young damselfs upon such a mess of dope as that.

The London Telegraph endeavors to show that married men live longest. The Telegraph editor should bear in mind that things are not always what they seem.

If some people followed the biblical instruction, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," some others would be surprised at the affection displayed for them.

A wise judge has decided that a woman who has not faithfully performed her household duties is not entitled to alimony with her divorce. If all women would perform their household duties faithfully, there would not be so many looking for divorces.

MANY MAY BE OVERLOOKED IN CENSUS TAKING

Patriotic Ones Who Have Not Been Counted Should Get in Touch With Enumerators.

There is more than a probability that a great many residents will be overlooked by the census enumerators and any who are not called upon and who wish their city or county and state to make the best possible record should see that their names are turned in. J. S. Magladry telephoned from Row River Monday that no one had yet been into that district and the commercial club at once took the matter up with the census director in order to get in touch with the proper enumerator. It is probable that this and a number of other camps may be overlooked or it is possible that the enumerators have not yet been able to reach them. If a camp like Row River should be overlooked, between 250 and 300 would be overlooked. The overlooking of a few settlements like this in a number of sections of the country would result in a loss of thousands in population as far as the census records would show.
