HAS HIS CHOICE OF MOUNTS

Many Horses Provided, From Which the Sultan of Morocco Selects the One He Will Ride.

Between the black guard and the tents five or six horses were being led up and down by muscular grooms in snowy tunics. They were handsome animals, as Moroccan horses go, and each of a different color; and on the bay horse was a red saddle embroidered in gold, on the pibald a saddle of peach color and silver, on the chestnut grass green encrusted with seed pearls, and on the bay mare purple housings, and orange velvet on the gray.

The sultan's hand had struck up a shrill hammering and twanging, the salute of the black guard continued at intervals, and the caparisoned steeds began to rear and snort and drag back from the cruel Arab bits with their exquisite niello incrustations, writes Edith Wharton in the Yale Review. Some one whispered that these were his majesty's horses, and that it was never known until he appeared which one he would mount.

Presently the crowd about the tents thickened, and when it divided again there emerged from it a gray horse bearing a motionless figure swathed in blinding white. Marching at the horse's bridle lean brown grooms in white tunics rhythmically waved long strips of white linen to keep the flies from the motionless presence; and beside the motionless rider, in a line with the horse's flank, rode the imperial parasol bearer, who held above the sovereign's head a great sunshade of bright green velvet.

Enlargements of the Umpqua and Butte creek fish hatcheries are outlined by State Game Warden Burghdoff and Master Fish Warden Clanton, who have just returned from that section. Work is also to begin soon on the Ament dam fish ladders. A peculiarity in the salmon run this year, they point out, is the heavy one in the Umpqua and the extremely light one in the Rogue. Percy Cupper, state engineer, will leave this week for Sacramento, where he will confer with W. F. McClure, state engineer of California, with regard to the proposed appropriation of water from Warner lake in southern Oregon for the irrigation of lands embraced in the Surprise valley project in northern California.

The last step to insure prosperity for the Rogue river valley within a year, with irrigation of 10,000 acres of its best orchard and farm lands, was taken when contracts were signed by the board of directors of the Medford irrigation district and the Rogue River Canal company for the sale of $1,250,000 of district 6 per cent gold bonds at 99 and for the complete installation of a system of irrigation to be completed in time for the season of 1921.

That black volcanic cinders, inexhaustible deposits of which are found in the immediate vicinity of Bend, may solve the problem of finding a light aggregate to take the place of gravel in bridge concrete, which has been confronting the state highway commission for some time, is the belief of District Highway Engineer Stebbins. Rockhill of Riddle to restrain the state from proceeding with the construction of the so-called Canyonville cutoff section of the Pacific highway.

The state board of control, acting upon statements contained in telegrams received from the three members of the state highway commission, indicating that there was urgent need of funds with which to meet obligations already incurred by the state through the awarding of contracts for post and forest roads in Oregon, disposed of $1,000,000 of bonds under the so-called federal aid road law passed at the special session of the legislature last January. The bonds were purchased by the Lumbermens Trust company of Portland, which submitted the most satisfactory bid of $9.99 in behalf of the Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings bank of Chicago.
