A celebrated physician says that tight corsets cause red noses. Physicians might talk until they were black in the face about corsets squeezing the stomach into the top of the mouth and the rest of the organs into the most accessible portions of the diaphragm without making any impression upon the gentler sex, but when they can show that the face is disfigured by tight lacing in a manner that can't be repaired with a little powder, their advice may receive some consideration.

The short skirt has performed one service. Hosiery is no longer used as a safety deposit vault by women on shopping tours.

To have enough to eat—and be able to eat it—that's about all there is to life for some people.

If you dislike applause, get into the country newspaper business.
