REALLY REFRESHING.

A few days ago we were interested in the statement of one close to one of our higher educational institutions to the effect that the larger proportion of those who attend get almost no permanent benefit from the four years spent in getting their degrees. His explanation was that this large proportion attend the institution largely for the social features and picked, from the large number of studies offered, those which seemed the easiest way to a diploma. According to this man's belief, the colleges of the country encourage this happy-go-lucky form of education by the unlimited courses offered, while the taxpayer foots the bill for a four years' course in putting on social polish.

The Sentinel, always a supporter of higher education, regrets that there is ground for this accusation, and we are not going to lay all the blame onto the students who think more of four years of social pleasure than of putting something inside their heads that may some day prove of inestimable value to them. Parents are more lenient with their children than were parents of 25 years ago. All of us who have reached maturity will admit that. Children are permitted social pleasures never dreamed of by most of those who are now parents of these children.

It is equally true that parents of today have pleasures and enjoyments that parents of 25 years ago did not have, but one of those added pleasures is not added filial devotion of children, is not added thoughtfulness of children. Such parents do not wish their children to live under the same conditions and go through the same things that the parents went through, which is a worthy wish on the part of the parents, even though they may wish that young folks did not demand so much, even though they may wish that children could realize how much they have to be thankful for.

After giving consideration to this change in the life of the younger generation, after considering what often are the unreasonable demands of growing adolescent youth, after considering how adolescent youth is wasting the best years of life, it is refreshing to read of those less fortunate than the greater number of the young people of today but who seem to be taking greater advantage of the greater opportunities offered by the educational institutions.

A news item states that 18 young women are working for their room and board at the University of Oregon, that 3 have half day positions as stenographers and bookkeepers, that 13 are seeking similar work and that 63 are doing any work they can secure. All of these young women are from the freshman class and it is stated that some of these who are making such sacrifices to get an education have others dependent upon them for support. Instead of being supported in social elegance at the expense of parents, as so many demand as their right, they are actually assisting in the support of others while getting an education which others seem to think they are taking as a favor to parents and to the state.

Another item states that two young freshmen at the University, instead of being supported in ease at some frat house, have erected a tent near the campus and have fitted it up as a domicile to be used during their four years at the educational institution.

The young men are Norman Rossel and Guy Ferry, of The Dalles. Probably not a reader of The Sentinel has before heard the names, but we are willing to venture that both of the young men will be known to many in the coming years.

Congressman Blanton, of Texas, has been censured by congress for inserting unprintable matter in the Congressional Record. It is a little unfair to pick on Congressman Blanton in this way, when all the other congressmen are inserting matter that should not be printed. There should be a censor, as well as a censor.

No wonder Solomon was one of the wisest of men. He had seven hundred wives.—Aurora Observer.

That may have been good reasoning in the good old days when Solomon was a kid, but nowadays a man who'd take 700 wives would be considered a driving idiot.

Besides E. E. Brodie's other extraordinary qualifications for the post at Bangkok, it may be noted that his initials stand for Envoy Extraordinary.

THINGS WE THINK

Things Others Think and What We Think of the Things Others Think

The physical endurance of the lie is remarkable. It seldom fails to come back, no matter how far you may have gotten away with it.

A lovesick swain can hardly wait for the letter from his lady and yet he knows it will contain exactly the same words as the last one.

Wonder if the fellow who told his best girl that she was the apple of his eye found out that there wasn't any core.

The wife who brags her hubby up when she knows he doesn't deserve it can feel highly flattered upon her subtle strategy when she sees him trying to live up to her description of him.

Every young man who wastes his youth is putting a mortgage upon his prime.

A woman doesn't think so much of men after marrying one as she did before.

Without joking, did it ever occur to you how seldom you meet a woman who hasn't the power of speech?

A boy will get tired much quicker walking down hill on an errand than he will running up hill after a baseball.

Women make truces in order to study one another's defenses.

An Ohio man of 74 has just married a girl he started courting when 18 years of age. "This is so sudden!"

A genius is a man who does things that others said couldn't be done.

A woman sets her cap for a man and then catches him in her lap.

Some folks spend their money around the gambling board. Others lend it to their friends.

No matter what your eye defect is, our glasses will aid you best.

Tested Recipes

Peanut Butter Roll.

Try this delightful variation of the old-time jelly roll. It's so good the children won't be able to get enough. Use these ingredients: Two cups flour, half cup sugar, four level teaspoons baking powder, half cup lard, half cup sweet milk, half teaspoon salt. Roll out in a thin sheet like pie crust. For the filling, cream half cup peanut butter and tablespoon butter, spread it all over the dough, then sprinkle with sugar and half cup seeded raisins that have been floured and cut in small pieces. Roll the dough with the filling on top of it as you would jelly roll and cut it into inch pieces. Place the sections far enough apart in a pan so that they will not be crowded. They will double in size. Bake in quick oven.

Layer Cake.

Mix together three-fourths cup butter and two cups granulated sugar. When thoroughly mixed add yolks of four eggs, well beaten, and three-fourths cup rich milk. Sift in a cup of flour and two teaspoons baking powder. Beat well and add another cup of flour. Beat again, and then add half cup more, and last of all the egg whites beaten stiff. Flavor as desired. In making coconut cake substitute the coconut milk for the dairy milk and beat into the dough cup of grated coconut before putting it into the three-layer cake.

Casserole of Beans With Steak.
Wash two cups dried lima beans and soak over night in cold water. Drain, cover with fresh boiling water, add one-eighth teaspoon soda and cook until nearly tender. Drain well. Cut three-fourths pound chuck or round steak into small cubes and brown with two or three minced onions in two tablespoons drippings. Dredge with one-fourth cup flour sifted with one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two teaspoons salt and a tiny pinch of mace. Arrange in casserole dish in alternate layers with beans and one cup cooked tomatoes.

Cover with hot water and cook slowly two or three hours.

Apricot Tapioca.

Cover one cup tapioca with cold water and soak for two hours, then drain, add two cups boiling water, one fourth teaspoon salt and cook in a double boiler until transparent, then add one cup sugar and one teaspoon vanilla extract. Slice apricots into bottom of greased pudding dish, sprinkle over with a little lemon juice, pour over the tapioca mixture and bake 20 minutes. Serve cold with sugar and milk.
