The season never ends and the sales seldom slow for one of Pacific County's fastest growing industries.

Amid the hurdles facing many during the pandemic, the county's marijuana industry continues to generate millions in sales each month among a constellation of growers, processors and retail stores.

The bulk of the industry is based in Raymond, home to more than a dozen cannabis concentrate processors, including well-known Washington brands such as Millennium Marijuana, Two Heads Co., Green Labs, Canna Processing and BMF Washington.

Superior Harvest in Raymond had $583,695 in sales in November, the highest in the county. Millennium Marijuana had the second-highest total with $466,265, followed by Two Heads Co. with $388,252.

The county's retail marijuana sector continued to climb to record highs amid the pandemic.

Customers purchased nearly $1.2 million in marijuana products from three retail stores in Pacific County between September and November, according to the latest figures from the Washington State Liquor and Cannabis Board.
