

Assistant treasurer sought

Pamela Anderson

Barry Emard

Patricia West

Why did you decide to run for this particular office?

The office of Treasurer involves the monetary end of Grant High School business. As Assistant Treasurer I would not only be given a chance to contribute, but would be able to learn how money is earned and spent in an organization of this size and type of Grant. This is why I chose to run for this office. —Pamela Anderson

I wanted to participate in a school function and Assistant Treasurer was one in which I could do well. I also wanted to be better informed on school policy and procedure.

—Barry Emard

I enjoy being an active member of the student body. The office of Assistant Treasurer offers a chance to work with other students, handle money responsibilities, and learn about student government. —Patti West

Poll voting idea proposed to help student interest

Another term of office has passed and the proposed system of poll voting has not been investigated by either the Executive or the General councils. Time has run out on another administration.

A detailed outline of procedures, locations, and restrictions necessary to make poll voting effective was published in the January 13, 1967 edition of the Grantonian.

For all responsible purposes this public information has been left on the shelf to gather dust beside the promised yet untried campaign pledges and many time-consuming suggestions.

The shelves ought to be dusted, and the ideas and suggestions made to past councils revived. Students may revive their interest in student government if they feel that their ideas would be considered if proposed.

Two seek to lead General Council

Daniel Aiken

David Hytowitz

How do you plan to alleviate the problems that are slowing the General Council down?

Through encouraging and promoting more participation with decisive and controversial bills, we will attract new people with, hopefully, new ideas. This will alleviate the problem of representative inactivity. As has been shown in the past, students and representatives come and participate when controversial matters are being debated.

—Daniel Aiken

I would encourage the council to bring up more constructive legislation. This would be legislation which would help the school and the surrounding community. I would encourage the council to discuss student complaints on present school problems. I would try to discourage the council from discussing topics which would not effectively help the student body of Grant high school. —David Hytowitz

Reason suggested for poor turnout of fall candidates

With the upcoming spring elections for next fall's student body officers, we take this time to note that only twenty-two students are running for nine executive council posts.

Why are so few running for offices that represent the entire student body of over 2800? Is it because the elections have become a popularity contest with only a select few destined to win, thus eliminating other competition? Or is it because the Grant constitution sets up qualifications that few students can meet?

There are points for both sides of contention on qualifications for student body offices. Some say that if a person wants to run for an office badly enough that they will strive to attain the grade point average and unblemished school record desired in candidates.

Maybe one of these reasons are why so few ran this time. Perhaps it's simply disinterest.

President's 'most important job' cited by league post candidates

Margaret Callahan

Janet Gressel

What do you consider the most important job of a G.L. President?

To make sure that all girls have a chance to participate in Girls' League through the various projects and activities and to bring in and accept new ideas for the benefit of Girls' League.

—Margaret Callahan

The most important duty carried out by the President is obviously to run the entire G.L. efficiently! To make this possible, it's important to be able to coordinate various committees, so that they work as teams. Yearly activities need to be run smoothly with the help of many enthusiastic girls.

—Janet Gressel

'What could you do for the office?' asked of league secretary hopefuls

Olga Honchariw

Jean Yakymi

What do you think you can do for this office if elected?

If elected Girls' League Secretary, I will work closely with the President in getting new ideas for new activities that will interest all the girls. The traditional Big and Little Sister Party will be great, outside activities plentiful, and Girls' League Week will be top on the list.

—Olga Honchariw

If elected I would try to emphasize how much fun Girls' League is and can be. I would try to continue the fine tradition of past secretaries of doing an efficient job by contributing some new and interesting ideas and getting more girls involved in Girls' League activities.

—Jean Yakymi

Vote for the candidates of YOUR choice

SUMMER TERM at OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY

Who Needs It?

High School Seniors who...

- ... want to get a head start in their college careers by earning college credit before Fall
- ... want to know their way around campus, make new friends
- ... want to concentrate in one or two subjects, such as English, or math, or chemistry
- ... want to complete a whole "year" of work in one subject through the 11-week sequence program

The 1967 OSU Summer Bulletin gives complete information on registration, fees and courses—all the things you'll need to know when you plan an Oregon State summer.

WRITE TODAY

Robert L. Phillips, Director
Summer Term Office
Bexell Hall 115-H
Oregon State University
Corvallis, Oregon 97331