

Designs for new summer outfits use color dabbling, paperdolls

"Mugget Green" and "Tangerine Yellow" are colors created by Miss Katherine Cameron's fashion design class while designing and decorating paper dolls.

Part of the class project "to create the colors and designs that look good on you," explained Barb Wilkins. Eight different summer outfits are being designed, of plaid, print, or solid colors, according to Cora Wilbourn.

Dabbling paints together until the color suits you is the first step. All types of plaids and prints are then created from these colors. "I just thought of spring," said Jacki Kendall.

"We have to be very original and think of names to describe colors, and we make up names for ordinary colors," said Mary Tiniakos. "Drawing a plaid" is most difficult, but she was able to come up with a "Pathetic Print."

Although the designs are not going to be sewn in class, some of the students are planning to make clothes on their own. "If you know the color's appealing and the style's appealing, why not put some of them together?" contended Mary.

Ideas for colors and styles come from fashion magazines and books from our library, according to Sherrie Boehm. She is illustrating designs, rather than making paper dolls.

"If later on we try to get a job in fashion, we can put these illustrations in our portfolio (containing samples of their work)," explained Barb Wilkins.

"We try to give them many different things to do so that those who have the ideas can express them," commented Miss Cameron. The 23 designers will finish their project next week.

Groups to share ticket sale profit

Profit from the ticket sales for "Camelot" will be divided three ways between the student body, the PTA, and the Dad's club.

The student body will receive approximately 40 percent, the PTA 40 percent, and the Dad's club 20 percent. Formerly the student body received no profit from the Spring show, but due to the school's active participation they will receive a portion.

"It is important to remember that the PTA and Dad's club will not be using their share of the profits for their organizations," stated John Stuckey, activities director. "Their profits will be spent for scholarships which were formerly covered with the Dad's club show."

Approximately 70 percent of the available tickets are in circulation to be sold. A total of 5,000 tickets can be sold which will meet the capacity of seats in the auditorium for all three nights. The PTA and Dad's club are also selling tickets, but only students will be eligible to win the prizes.

"Students need to bring their parents, brothers and sisters to Camelot in order for the ticket sales to be successful," said Mr. Stuckey.

'Don't let it be forgot' The quotation from Alan Jay Lerner's "Camelot" are the words engraved on the plaque presented by William Byrne, Warner Brothers' studio, on behalf of the Hollywood cast of "Camelot," to John Stuckey, activities director.

Initiative of two electronic students eliminates college bowl buzzer system

Tim Ammon and Reid Bloom, juniors, took the initiative to create a new electronic and lighting set-up for the annual college bowls.

Working in Allan Davis' advanced electronics class the boys worked for approximately six weeks renovating the old buzzer system.

The new system will be used primarily in future college bowl meets and assemblies. It was purchased last March from Reed college where it was used as a General Electric's College Bowl series on television.

"The board was in pretty bad shape when we received it," commented Tim. At first the two boys made a diagram of the circuit and wiring layouts, which took them two weeks. Then working on one side of the board they put it into working condition.

The other side turned out to be somewhat harder. Finding the wiring to be a total loss, they had to re-do the whole section, using the working side as a guideline.

Having finished the electronics part of the panel, it was turned over to Louis Shilke's industrial arts class who gave it a new cover.

Masonic Temple to welcome prom; old South theme

"Magnolias and Southern Belles" is the theme for the annual senior prom to be held May 20 from 8 to 11 p.m. in the Sunken ballroom at the Masonic temple.

Committees working on the prom include: theme and decorations, Colleen Harnett; bids, Cathy Cormack; publicity, Sarah Fryberger; refreshments, Linda Wanamaker; invitations and personnel, Kristi Shimomura; and music, Joan Rosenbloom.

"Decorations for the prom will illustrate the theme and depict an old Southern Colonial mansion," stated Colleen Harnett. "Real magnolias and other fresh flowers will be used in the landscape surrounding the mansion."

Music for the prom will be provided by Jerry Van Hoomisen and his nine-piece orchestra. Refreshments will include the usual punch and cake.

"The senior prom is the biggest event of our senior year, and I sincerely feel that it will be a huge success," commented Tim Prah, senior class president. "The Masonic temple offers an atmosphere of traditional enchantment, and the theme and decorations were planned to complement the ballroom."

Bids for this year's senior prom are free. They will be in distribution for seniors.
