The Dads' Club Scholarship Committee has asked that I convey to you their decision on the scholarships they are giving this year.

They commend each one of you as most deserving of a scholarship and are sorry that it is not possible to give one to each of you. However, they can give only three, each valued at $200.00.

Congratulations to the winners!

Economic books donated to library

LOOKING THROUGH the newly received economics books from Portland State college are, left, Dr. Hugh Lovell, associate professor of economics at PSC; Miss Dorothy Johnson, librarian; and Albert Ouchi, social studies teacher.

New economic books have been donated to the library by the Oregon Council on Economic Education in cooperation with DEEP (Development Economic Education Project), according to Albert Ouchi, economics teacher and coordinator of the project.

"We hope that this collection of basic economic books will be useful for students in pursuit of economic understanding," commented Mr. Ouchi.

DEEP is a non-profit, national organization engaged in a project to provide materials in economics, train teachers and encourage development.

Supplying the school with a basic economic library and all schools in Oregon involved in the project is one aspect of DEEP's efforts to increase interest and growth.

"We are happy to receive these economic books that we may provide more resource materials for our students," commented Dorothy Johnson, head librarian.

'Memoirs' contracts for printing signed

Contracts concerning next year's Memoirs have recently been signed, according to next year's adviser, Willard Mohn.

Taylor Publishing company has been contracted for publication. The contract includes 16 pages of four-color process and a special cover.

Printing will be linotype. Hitherto it was set on the school's IBM typewriters and reduced or enlarged to desired size.

Bruce Luzader studio has again been contracted for photography.

"The decision," groaned Mr. Mohn, "was made after hours of lost sleep."
