Social Work seminar begins

by Steph Daly

The Social Work Seminar, open to interested juniors, will begin with an introductory meeting at Portland State college on Wednesday. Speaking will be Dr. Gordon Hearn, Dean of the graduate School of Social Work at Portland State; Dr. Dan Jennings, School of Social Work, and Carolyn Selling, Executive Director of Social Work careers in Oregon.

On December 9, at the Donald E. Long Home, a career variety in social work will be presented, with a question and answer session, and a tour of the facilities. Transportation will be provided to Christie school at Marylhurst college, for the same type of program.

Other activities will be held in between until March 11 and 12, during Spring Vacation.

On March 11, there will be agency workshops at Westminster Presbyterian Church, and on March 12, there will be a tour of facilities at the Jewish Community Center. At the Community Center students will be interviewed by volunteers as to what type of social work they prefer.

Students indicating intent will be asked to work with an individual social worker on a one-to-one basis. Relationship and field experience will exist for two months, or a period to include 3 or 4 meetings.

Students signed up for the Social Careers Program are Joyce

Ainsworth, June Ammon, Sherrie Arehart, Jill Bergman, and Beverly Brooks.

Also listed are: Terri Caulfield, Gail Dana, Marla Gaarenstroom, Laurie Gilbert, Laura Gustav, and Diane Heaney.

Concluding the list are: Bea Johnson, Debbie Knauss, Sonya Manning, Kathy McGregor, Sylvia McMillan, Cheryl Rogers, Shelly Taylor, Barbara Wilkins, and Jorge Bacelis.

The program is designed to be held other than school hours and with respect for confidentiality of agency clients. Initial interviews with the students for backgrounds of interest and hobbies, orientation, small discussion groups, working arrangements with an individual social worker on a one-to-one basis, and supervisory agency personnel are available to the students.

A summer work placement will follow for the interested students.

Optimist clubs to honor youth

Optimist clubs of Portland will honor 90 students from approximately 15 Portland area high schools at a banquet on November 15 as a part of their annual Youth Appreciation week.

Representing six fields in student activities, scrolls of commendation will be presented to Bob Heldfont for student body affairs; Ron Marrs for musical ability; Chris Swan for leadership in athletics; Mary Birke-land, rally girl leader; Brian McCune for scholarship; and Cecile O'Rourke for work in the field of journalism.

Reminding citizens of the community that young people are fine citizens is the purpose of Youth Appreciation week, according to John Stuckey, student adviser. The banquet honoring the students is the highlight of the week.
