

'Herman creek' destination for Whitlow's hikers

Whitlow's hikers are at it again! Member of Leonard Whitlow's history class have scheduled another hike along Herman Creek trail for Sunday.

According to Mr. Whitlow, the hike is planned just for fun and anyone in his classes who wants to come will be allowed to.

"This is definitely not a school sponsored activity," commented Mr. Whitlow. "All students must furnish their own transportation and pack their own lunch."

Hikers will tramp about six miles up Herman Creek trail or, according to Mr. Whitlow, "until their feet get tired."

This is the second hike the class has planned this year. The last hike, a 13-mile walking tour of Eagle creek, involved nine members of the class and was held on April 6.

"Because so many kids couldn't make the last trip which we scheduled for a Saturday," Mr. Whitlow explained, "I promised them another hike on a Sunday."

Mr. Whitlow, who was raised in the country, has enjoyed hiking as a hobby for about five years.

Memoirs to be received next week; early morning distribution planned

Memoirs will be received by students in reg rooms on either Tuesday or Wednesday, according to Willard Mohn, advisor. A limited number will be available after 3:00 p.m. on that day. Price for these books is $5.50.

Students picking books up for others must do so on the day of distribution after 3:30 p.m. in room 207 or the following day before school only. "They must be here before 8:30 and after 3:00," stated Mr. Mohn.

At the same time, plastic covers for the yearbooks will be on sale. They will be sold in center hall both lunch periods on the day of delivery, and before and after school in room 207. Price for the covers is 35 cents.

The Frosh Handbook is now being revised by members of the Memoirs and Grantonian staffs for distribution the opening week of school next fall to incoming freshmen and other new students.

The cover design for the book is by Karen O'Dell, art staff co-chairman. Other artwork appearing throughout the book was drawn by Mahlon Read's art classes.

Congratulations! Mrs. Elizabeth Barker congratulates Linda Lynch and hands her a certificate of merit for helping to raise $16 in an effort to pass the school bond issue. Other students who helped in the fund raising event were: Collett McConaughy, Debbie Payne, Deanna Colvin, Jennie Hamilton, Linda Lynch, Bob Thompson.

Summer income for next year sought by anxious job hunters

Many of the more enthusiastic Grantonians, or maybe just greedier, have already secured that summer income that will be used to buy next year's school clothes.

After encountering many different students it is surprising to find just how many work during the summer. Many girls stated that they would be working in fountains, soda jerking.

Other jobs ranged from secretarial work to key punch operators, and many girls are planning to work at the telephone company, where they receive training with pay.

Three girls and four boys commented on working on ranches, as part-time hands, and enjoying the freedom of horseback riding. Eight girls and two boys will be having modeling jobs, which is not all fun and no play. Added to their statements was, "It's more like all work and no eating."

Quite a number of boys remarked that they were going to help with supermarket work, and some added that they were going into construction work in Eastern Oregon. Three or four girls commented that they would be working at summer resorts, two of these in Crater Lake and one at Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming.

Many different comments were received when asked why they were going to work this summer, such as, "Well, what else do you want me to do?" and "If I don't get a job this summer, I don't go to college next year." One boy added, "Well, because I don't like to lie around all the time."

After talking to so many people I found that summer jobs are almost a necessity. Some of us just need the money and some of us simply feel it our responsibility to do something worthwhile with our time. Remember the old cliché, "Idle hands are devil's tools?", well, it's been proven to be true.

Puppets, quilt, cards given to Red Cross by Girls' League

Playing cards, donated by junior class Girls' league, a quilt given by the sophomores, and puppets made by the freshmen are the service projects which will be given to Red Cross.

Puppets numbering 40 were made at the home of Betsy Turner, freshman class Girls' league president, on May 7. The puppets were made of pink and green felt.

Old nylons and cotton material were collected by the sophomores to make a quilt which will be sent to an old folks' home through the Red Cross.

Complete decks of playing cards are being given by the juniors as their part in the service project.

"This is the first year the Girls' league has had their service project to help the Red Cross. We decided to help this organization after reading a story in the Grantonian in which two girls said that there was a need for a larger club to help the Red Cross," stated Helen Kappler, advisor.

University sessions

Students attend summer workshops

Summer workshops are in the air with speech and journalism students attending different universities throughout the country.

If accepted, Jan Kelley will travel to the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis for a newspaper workshop to be held August 5-17. Jan has also made application at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Marcy Stere, Joan Kline, and possibly a third person will attend the yearbook session at Portland State, June 10-14. William Stocking, advisor of publications at Marshall high school, will teach the workshop.

Willard Mohn, publications advisor, will be in charge of the newspaper workshop at Portland State. Jerry Penk, chairman of the journalism department at Portland State, will be the workshop director.

Lewis and Clark college will be the destination of six, and possibly seven, speech students this summer. Robin Suwol, Dave Taylor, Joe Stilwell, Larry Wheeler, Paul Esselsyn, Marc Lowenthal and possibly Dave Edwards will attend the two-week session beginning August 6.
